Puzzle winner at last!

Twenty-six weeks and thousands of entries have produced a winner at last in the Payoff Puzzle Contest.

The winner, whose name will be announced in Saturday's Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, picks up $1,300 in what was the last contest in this series.

Because of the difficulties with mail delivery between Victoria and New York where the puzzle originates — delays in delivery of puzzles and solutions were frequent — the Payoff Puzzle has been discontinued although contest fans can look for more challenges after the new Times-Colonist gets underway.

For the solution to last week's Payoff Puzzle see page 10. Unfortunately the explanations to the clues was once again delayed in the mails.

Map carrier says she told all

VANCOUVER (CP) — An Eckardt commission worker said Thursday she told deputy attorney-general Dick Vogel that a key aide to Premier Bill Bennett used her as a messenger to carry to the commission riding boundary maps he had drawn himself.

But Vogel made no mention of Dale Mearns's story implicating Dan Campbell, then director of intergovernmental relations in the premier's office, in the report he prepared for Attorney-General Allan Williams and which was later presented to the legislature.

The latest revelations about alleged interference by Grace McCarthy, deputy premier and human resources minister, in Judge Larry Eckardt's commission on electoral reform were carried in a copyright story in the Vancouver Sun today.

McCarthy has been accused of pressing Eckardt in 1978 to include a politically advantageous finger of land in her Little Mountain constituency here.

The afternoon newspaper said Williams did not mention the Mearns incident when he told the house that a statement by another commission worker, Vi Barton, who made the same allegation, could not be substantiated.

Barton said in an interview that Vogel told her he had checked into her story about Mearns and the maps supplied by Campbell and was unable to prove it.

"I just don't know why Vogel doesn't release my interview," said Mearns, senior office manager for the commission. "I'm not calling for a release, but I can't understand why he doesn't do it."

Williams confirmed the Campbell-Mearns-Eckardt involvement Thursday, adding that Eckardt was outraged by it.

But he insisted it had no bearing on the controversy.

"Nothing has been disclosed which in any way indicates any impropriety linking any member of the government to the commission," Williams said.

The Vogel inquiry report tabled Aug. 5 by Williams cleared McCarthy of all wrongdoing.

Campbell, who resigned in the midst of the dirty tricks scandal last year, was not mentioned in the report, although he was interviewed by the inquiry and his involvement was repeatedly mention by other commission members in their interviews.

Mearns agreed to be interviewed late Thursday after Williams earlier confirmed that Campbell drew up his own set of electoral boundary maps and ordered Mearns to fly over to Victoria, pick them up, and deliver them to Eckardt.

SEALED WITH KISS was ceremony Thursday that saw Tourism Minister Pat Jordan present Sinbad, prize performer at Sealand, with Good Show pin. Ministry awards pins to people in hospitality industry who are nominated by visitors for providing exceptional service. Somebody wrote in nominating Sinbad and after due deliberation, minister and top brass decided, yes indeed, Sinbad was worthy of the honor. After presentation Thursday, Jordan got whiskery, slightly fishy smack of appreciation.

300 motorcyclists plan to defy new helmet law

The Canadian Press

A group of Vancouver motorcyclists say they won't wear helmets today despite an amendment to the B.C. Motor Vehicle Act requiring them to do so.

Mike Gorval, spokesman for the Motorcycle Protective Association, said about 300 of the association's 2,000 members will continue to ride bareheaded to protest the law.

He said studies by the association prove helmets are unsafe.

The amendment making helmet use mandatory quickly passed through second and third reading in the legislature Thursday and was given royal assent by Lt.-Gov. Henry Bell-Irving.

The edict became effective at midnight Thursday night.

The B.C. government took a different course than its Alberta counterpart. An Alberta provincial court judge struck down helmet legislation in that province on grounds it violated personal liberties guaranteed in Alberta's Bill of Rights.

The Alberta government has launched an appeal of that case but it isn't expected to be heard until late this year or early 1981.

The amendment to the B.C. law — unanimously supported by the NDP — will fix a section of the act which a provincial court judge ruled last week doesn't give the superintendent of motor vehicles authority to make regulations such as the one requiring the use of helmets.

Many B.C. motorcyclists used the opportunity to doff their helmets, despite pleas from Transportation Minister Alex Fraser that they keep them on for their own safety.

At least four bareheaded motorcyclists died in the nearly two weeks it took to amend the legislation, although not all could be directly attributed to the lack of a helmet.

Under the amendment, the section rejected by the judge is replaced by one which states motorcyclists must wear a safety helmet. Regulations also were passed by cabinet setting out quality standards for helmets.

Attorney-General Allan Williams said police likely will give motorcyclists who are stopped today some leeway if they have not heard about the new legislation.

This is the second time in just over a year the B.C. government has had to fix its helmet legislation, but it may not be the last.

A Burnaby provincial court judge ruled in June, 1979, that the regulation improperly delegated authority for testing helmets, but the loophole was plugged by the attorney-general's ministry.

Jim McNeney, who won the latest court battle, said Wednesday the Motorcycle Protective Association of B.C., which he represents, will go back to the courts but he doesn't say when.

Meanwhile, an outspoken opponent of the helmet legislation also said the fight is not yet over.

"The last line in any argument is violence," said David Black, a Vancouver motorcycle shop owner. "This is another nail in their coffin."

Black said motorcyclists will show the government they don't want or need people telling them they will get hurt if they don't wear helmets.

Len Kingman, president of the B.C Safety Council, said he was happy the helmet regulation was given more force by being turned into law.

Brian Lowes, the safety council's chief motorcycle instructor, said the province must tighten up regulations which permit thousands of incompetent riders on the roads with only a learner's licence.

Secret U.S. plane invisible to radar

New York Times

WASHINGTON — The U.S. defence department has developed and flown an experimental aircraft that is virtually invisible to Soviet radar, government officials said Wednesday.

The officials said that the fighter plane, known in military circles as "the stealthy aircraft," had been tested in secret at Nellis Air Force Base in Nevada for two years. Built in a shape designed to reflect the fewest radar waves, and coated with a special material that diffuses the waves, the plane is said to hold out the possibility of penetrating Soviet air space undetected.

Some officials, however, expressed skepticism over the potential of the new aircraft, developed by the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. They said at least one of the planes had crashed because of its shape.

It was not clear why information about the secret project was being disclosed now, but some congressional aides suggested that the Carter administration was attempting to respond to criticism by Ronald Reagan.

Picket line shuts tap on beer pipeline

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first move by locked-out brewery workers to block all imports of beer to B.C. began early today when union members set up a picket line around the liquor distribution branch's beer warehouse here.

And John Langley, head of the brewery union, said the liquor distribution branch is expected to ask the labor relations board for a cease and desist order to halt picketing, but his members would not obey such an order.

"Some of our guys might go to jail, but we're ready to break the law," he said.

Members of the B.C. Government Employees Union, who work in provincial liquor stores, earlier pledged to support brewery workers by declaring all imported beer hot, effective midnight Thursday.

Several members of the BCGEU who attended a strike planning session Thursday said they would be happy to help make the province completely dry to pressure Labor Minister Jack Heinrich into intervening directly in the shutdown of the three major breweries.

However, their leaders told them to continue handling beer that is still in the system.

Liquor branch officials recently estimated the lockout at Molson, Carling O'Keefe and Labatt breweries had reduced B.C. beer supplies to 25 per cent of normal for the peak summer period.

Jack Adams of the BCGEU said most liquor stores would be out of beer by tonight.

The Brewery, Winery and Distillery Workers Union, which represents about 1,200 workers, recently became affiliated with the BCGEU.

Adams said the Teamsters Union, which hauls 99 per cent of the beer entering B.C., has promised to co-operate with the BCGEU and stop delivering imported beer.

Adams said BCGEU workers are legally bound to continue handling beer in the stores, so the plan is to dry up the flow from outside.

Meanwhile in Victoria, Heinrich said the two unions should review their plans because the move will be misunderstood by the public and could contribute to a further hardening of positions.

Heinrich said mediator Ken Albertini met with both parties during the last two days and has reported that the employers are not prepared to change their offer, so joint bargaining has not resumed. The lockout began July 26.

Dollar exchange

U.S. dollar at banks this morning bought $1.15 Canadian, according to the Visitors Information Centre.

U.S. living cost stands still

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the first time in 13 years, the cost of living for Americans did not go up in July, the government reported today.

A dramatic decline in mortgage interest rates canceled out higher prices for food and other goods last month and there was no change in over-all retail prices last month.

The Labor Department said that after seasonal adjustments, its monthly Consumer Price Index — designed to measure the cost of living for the typical American — was unchanged in July.

That index has risen steadily since March 1967. And before July, prices had been rising 0.9 percent or more every month for a year and a half. In June, inflation was running at a compound annual rate of 12.3 percent.

"The compound annual rate in July was a big, fat zero," said one department statistician. This means that if prices do for the next year what they did in July, goods will cost the same a year from now at the retail level.

But economists have warned that the improvement in inflation rate should be temporary. Mortgage rates are beginning to go up again and should show up in the retail price index in a few months.

Firms fined for 'borrowing' tax money

Tight money is blamed for a growing number of convictions of small businesses for withholding income tax and other employee paycheque deductions instead of sending money to the tax department.

More than 20 B.C. companies convicted in the past two months had kept payroll deductions of around $500,000.

Tax officials say as the economy weakens and business gets tough, employers look for the most immediate source of money — and payroll deductions are just sitting there.

But these companies are being taken to court in larger numbers, said Art Moffat, chief of the tax department's source deductions section in Victoria.

The Victoria office does proportionately less legal processing than the Vancouver tax district but has taken one owner of a firm to court a number of times.

The charges resulted in five fines between October, 1976, and last month for failing to remit tax deductions.

The total fines amounted to $5,700.

Moffat oversees payroll tax deduction by 17,000 island employers, some of whom are feeling the economic pinch this year.

Moffat blames a slump in logging due to the housing market decline while mortgage rates are high, a slow tourist season and the month-old beer lockout.

The trend rises and falls with the local money situation, and with the status of business accounts receivable.

"Payroll deductions for taxes are trust funds and belong to the employees," Moffat said.

When Revenue Canada goes after defaulting employers, it is as much to show an example to others as for the recovery of taxes.

"We don't go to court unless the corporation has a history of non-remitting," Moffat says.

The process usually starts with a warning letter. If payments are late, an 11-per-cent penalty is assessed and if no payments are forthcoming, charges are laid.

Major offenders convicted since June 25 include three companies and their principals who were fined a total of $14,000 for keeping $337,000 they deducted from employees' paycheques.

Heaviest fines went to Bordignon Construction Ltd. of Vancouver, convicted of three counts of failing to remit the money. Bordignon was fined $2,000 and president Luigi Bordignon was fined $1,000.

More than $270,000 had been deducted from Bordignon employees' paycheques between May and July, 1978, but had not been remitted to Revenue Canada.

A person found guilty can be fined up to $10,000 and jailed up to six months.

However, employees still receive credit for the amounts withheld from the paycheques, even if the employer keeps the money.

Breakthrough at hand for Japan's tunnelers

TOKYO (UPI) — Japanese workers are nearing a breakthrough in what will be the world's longest underwater railway tunnel.

Little more than two miles of rock remain to be blasted for the 32.3-mile tube that will link two of Japan's main islands — Honshu and northernmost Hokkaido, the rustic skiers' paradise that Japanese compare with America's Far West.

The Seikan Undersea Railway Tunnel is a remarkable engineering coup, dwarfing in length the longest underwater tunnel in the United States, the 3.6-mile rapid transit tunnel beneath San Francisco Bay.

The tunnel idea originated in the late 1920s with the now-defunct Imperial Army. It dreamed of linking the Japanese main islands with Japanese-held Korea and Sakhalin Island, then divided between Japan and the Soviet Union.

Half a century later, work is nearing completion on just the first segment of the original proposal, at a cost of $1.59 billion.

Day and night, some 2,000 workers dig and drill from each end of the tunnel to meet more than 300 feet beneath the seabed, 750 feet beneath the water surface. The tunnel, with double railway tracks, is scheduled to open in 1982.

The Imperial Army originally conceived of the tunnel as important for strategic reasons, but hopes for it died with the Sino-Japanese War and World War II.

Korea won independence after 35 years under Japanese rule upon Japan's surrender in 1945 and Japan's share of Sakhalin island returned to Soviet rule.

The ambitious tunnel plan was inherited by the Japanese National Railway, which began preliminary geological surveys and feasibility studies in 1946 while Japan was still struggling to recover from the Pacific war.

Giving new urgency to the tunnel project was a Honshu-Hokkaido ferry disaster in 1954 that killed more than 1,000 passengers.

"That convinced our officials of the need for the tunnel," said Shingo Maeda, spokesman for the state-run National Railways Construction Corp. His agency is building the tunnel.

Drilling began in 1972 from both sides, Hamana on the northern tip of Honshu and Yunosato on the southern end of Hokkaido. The tunnel burrows through dense volcanic rock to minimize the danger from earthquakes, which are frequent in Japan.

Corporation officials said 27 workers have been killed and more than 700 others injured in various accidents since the excavation started.

The accidents, coupled with drilling difficulties, three tunnel floodings and the 1973 oil crisis, brought a four-year delay in completion of the project, originally scheduled for 1978, said Maeda.

The main tunnel is 53 feet high and 34 feet wide. Pilot and service tunnels will provide ventilation and drainage.

Railway officials said the completion of Seikan Tunnel will bring Hokkaido within 20 minutes of Honshu by "bullet train." The ferry, frequently halted by bad weather, takes 4 ½ hours.

The officials said the tunnel will help greatly in the development of Hokkaido, the size of Maine and the least developed of Japan's four main islands but of increased strategic importance because it faces islands held by the Soviet Union.

Britain and France recently revived interest in an English Channel "chunnel," first proposed by Napoleon. Plans call for a one-way railroad tunnel shorter than the Seikan Tunnel and financed privately at a cost of more than $2 billion.

Barber slams double vote

An amendment to the Municipal Act which would allow persons living in one municipality and renting business premises in another to vote in both areas at municipal election time is anti-democratic, Charles Barber (NDP — Victoria) charged Thursday.

"It is a new kind of gerrymandering designed to support the Social Credit civic machine," said Barber, his party's municipal affairs critic.

The proposed amendment has generated considerable opposition from municipal politicians primarily on the basis that it violates the concept of one vote for one person. The amendment would allow a person who lives in Oak Bay — and rents business space in Victoria, Saanich and Esquimalt — to vote in each of those municipalities.

NDP members have charged that the amendment arises partly from Social Credit fears about a resolution passed at this year's NDP convention which gives local constituency associations the green light to get involved in municipal politics.

"What this bill does is create a new class of electors which has traditionally identified itself with Social Credit," said Barber.

He said that amendment would add another 5,000 voters in Victoria and probably up to 25,000 in Vancouver.

The Social Credit government which has secretly backed many civic politicians in the past, Barber said, now finds its control of local government beginning to slip.

"What do they do in reply? They rig the voter's list."

Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm defended the amendment, saying it is needed to give business persons a say in how the area around their place of business is developed.

"When we began developing the downtown revitalization program to assist small business, we quickly learned that this same small business — expected to pay directly or indirectly for those improvements of particular benefit to their area — would not be allowed a vote on the proposals for which they would be expected to pay," he said.

The mayors of Vancouver, New Westminster and Kamloops all have objected to the amendment.

Petro-Can set for buying spree?

CALGARY (CP) — Petro-Canada is again sizing up Canadian subsidiaries of foreign oil companies for possible takeover, according to the Calgary Sun.

It said the shopping list includes Amoco Canada Petroleum Co. Ltd., Chevron Standard Ltd., Gulf Canada Ltd., Mobil Oil Canada Ltd., Suncor Inc. and Texaco Canada Inc.

Buying any of these companies would firmly establish the federal Crown corporation as a significant player in the domestic energy business, and further reduce foreign domination of it.

Financing would have to be of unprecedented magnitude.

Petro-Canada began active life with purchase of Atlantic Richfield Canada Ltd. in 1975 for $450 million. In 1978, it paid $1.7 billion for Pacific Petroleums Ltd.

Industry sources said the price for a company like Texaco or Mobil would run about $6 billion. The sum could likely be arranged with relative ease through Canadian and foreign banks on the strength of the collateral value of the companies' oil and natural gas holdings in the ground.

Corporation officials in Ottawa would not confirm in telephone interviews they are seeking a new addition.

But it is known the company evaluated Gulf Canada about two years ago when the latter was being offered for sale by the controlling Mellon interests.

Petro-Canada needs an integrated operation to make its coast-to-coast marketing plans a reality.

Farm labor squalor detailed

MATSQUI (CP) — An inquest into the bizarre drowning of an infant girl has revealed that many itinerant B.C. farm workers in this Fraser Valley community live in squalid conditions.

A coroner's jury probing the death of the seven-month-old daughter of fruit pickers working at Jasmer Briach's farm, found the child, Sukhdeep Madhar, died accidentally July 16 when she rolled off a bunk headfirst into a pail of water at her parents' tiny living quarters in a converted horse barn.

The jury called for immediate legislation empowering the provincial health ministry to establish minimum living standards for farm workers housed in what are known as berry cabins.

Harold Neuman, building inspector in this sprawling municipality about 90 kilometres east of Vancouver, told the inquest no one should have been living in the barn where the child drowned.

The barn, which had been converted into living quarters for farm workers, had 13 stalls, each measuring about three metres square and containing six beds.

Evidence during the two-day inquest revealed the barn had been illegally altered in 1979 and now meets no provincial or municipal building, fire and health standards.

"The onus is on the owner to see that the permits are obtained and the building requirements are met," Neuman said.

Renovations to house farm laborers are usually carried out in standing structures, like the barn, he said. If construction starts from the ground up, it can be seen and investigated.

"But if a barn has been converted, and this sort of work could be finished on a weekend, from the outside it still looks like a barn," Neuman said.

John Spring, the Matsqui police constable who investigated the drowning, said he was struck by the squalor of living conditions in the barn when he first visited the dormitory which housed as many as 60 to 70 workers.

Matsqui Alderman Doug Taylor said "quite a bit" of illegal accommodation for itinerant farm labor exists in Matsqui.

"I know it's going on and maybe some of the staff know," Taylor said. "We have all been turning a blind eye to it."

Taylor blamed the situation on "sob sisters who are afraid farm land will go out of existence" and the agricultural land commission, "which has made it difficult to accommodate these workers.

"The trend is to larger commercial farms and these growers must be allowed to provide temporary accommodation," he said.

Taylor said under current standards growers have to provide what amounts to apartments on farms.

"And if the accommodation is too good it will have people living there year round," he said. "I am surprised that the growers have not objected to some of these regulations. They are too tight for them to do a job.

"If the owner of this farm had applied for permission to accommodate farm labor he would have been turned down," Taylor said. "Where would his pickers stay?"

French attack accused

OLIVER (CP) — French Canadian workers demonstrated outside this community's provincial courthouse after three persons were remanded on charges of wilful damage in connection with an attack on a fruit-pickers' camp in June.

The orchard workers angrily left the courthouse after Timonthy Montgomery, Coy Bridgeman and Jose Carlos Dos Santos, all of nearby Osoyoos, were remanded Wednesday until Sept. 3.

The three accused were chased to their vehicles. One protester kicked in the door of one of the cars and was dragged off by police.

Other protesters then moved on to the RCMP headquarters and back again to the courthouse where about 30 farm workers listened to a speech by George Boylen, president of the General Farm and Allied Workers Union. Boylen urged workers to attend the court hearing Sept. 3.

The three men were charged after a group of French-Canadian fruit workers camping near Osoyoos orchards were attacked by persons wielding clubs. An investigation, which also saw a Quebec government representative visit the area, concluded that racism was not an issue.

Alcan accepts ruling

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Aluminum Co. of Canada will not appeal a B.C. Supreme Court order that it obey directives from federal fisheries on water flow in the Nechako River, William Rich, Alcan's vice-president for B.C., said Thursday.

Fisheries officials had successfully argued that high flow rates in the river were needed until Aug. 20 to protect spawning salmon. The hearing followed a month-long dispute between Alcan and Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc over control of water levels.

Alcan said the higher rate was not necessary and that lower rates were needed to provide hydroelectric power at its Kitimat aluminum smelter on the north B.C. coast.

However, on Wednesday Alcan said it had lowered the flow to 500 cubic feet a second from 8,000 cfs on orders from federal fisheries.

'Mad bomber' attack just a silly prank?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver's self-styled "mad bomber," who hurled an explosive device into the police station lobby early Thursday morning, is really a prankster whose bomb was a rocket-type firecracker, police said Thursday.

Several people in the lobby at about 1 a.m. PDT headed for cover when a projectile flew through an open front door and exploded. No one was injured.

"I haven't finished analyzing the material, but I suspect a rocket-type firecracker similar to the one used in fireworks displays," said police laboratory analyst Geoff Hilton.

"I think it was a silly prank," said Supt. Tom Herdman. "If it was a serious attempt, it would have been a more major type of explosion."

Half an hour later, a man telephoned and identified himself as "the mad bomber" and claimed responsibility.

We're tightening up on people who abuse Unemployment Insurance.

Most people getting unemployment insurance play by the rules. But some people don't seem to know that they can't take a job and collect benefits without telling us they're working. That's why employers are being asked to send us the starting date and Social Insurance Number or extracts from computer payroll tapes for each employee they hire or rehire. This information is cross-checked with the Social Insurance Numbers of people receiving unemployment insurance benefits. Only cases of potential abuse will ever surface. After investigation, anyone found receiving benefits to which they are not entitled will have to repay them.

It may be an honest mistake. Some people forget or don't understand they must tell Unemployment Insurance and report their total earnings when they start a new job. In that case, repayment is all that's required. But, a penalty or prosecution may follow when the new system detects people wrongly collecting benefits.

If you are collecting unemployment insurance benefits, and start a new job, please say so on your UI claimant report card.

The inquiry must be public

The ongoing saga of "Gracie's finger" should show the Social Credit government for once and for all the folly of holding only internal inquiries into serious allegations of wrongdoing.

When the government last winter set up a series of internal inquiries into various aspects of the so-called "dirty tricks" affairs — phoney letters to the editor, possible discrepancies in campaign spending reporting, and the affair of Gracie's finger (alleged interference by Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy into the establishment of boundaries for her home riding by the Eckhardt commission on electoral reform) — warnings abounded.

Opposition MLAs, political observers and members of the public said that the process of an internal investigation was open to question. An investigation conducted only by public servants responsible to the politicians being investigated would not necessarily be seen as objective by the public. An investigation held behind closed doors would not necessarily answer the many questions the public had about the dirty-tricks allegations. An investigation of this nature was hard on those against whom accusations had been made because the public might not be sure about any report that cleared them of wrongdoing. In brief, justice was not to be seen to be done.

Still, the complaints died down, in large part because Attorney-General Allan Williams has a long-held and well-deserved reputation as being among the most honorable of politicians. Everyone waited for the reports of the investigations.

They took more than six months to arrive, a sign, some hoped, that the investigations were extremely thorough.

The results, when Williams did announce them, were hardly startling: in none of the cases had any wrongdoing been proved; in none of the cases, was any further action needed.

In the affair of Gracie's finger, the investigation report stated that no evidence had been found to back up any part of the complaining staff member's statement.

The matter might well have died there, but for a statement this week from another person who had worked for the Eckhardt commission. The second statement backed up the first concerning interference by McCarthy, and it raised some other questions about possible attempts at political interference with the commission's work.

New Democrat MLA Gary Lauk has also asked questions that raise serious doubts about the commission's procedures and reports.

None of this is equal to proof that political interference affected the commission's deliberations, but the implication is there.

If these further allegations were answered in the investigation report, however, they would not be a problem. The government would in that way have showed it had investigated the matter properly and thoroughly.

In fact, none of these matters are mentioned in the report at all, although the staff members say they were reported to the civil servant investigators.

The residents of B.C. cannot be blamed for suspecting that something untoward is going on. Neither can they be blamed for being suspicious of all the other internal investigations into dirty-tricks issues. If one report left out so much that might have been harmful to the government, what about the others?

Williams now has no choice but to do what he should have done in the first place — call a proper, judicial inquiry into the whole affair.

Disgraceful conditions

In a province as rich as B.C., it is a disgrace that anyone should be living in the conditions described by migrant farm workers at an inquest in the Fraser Valley this week.

The workers, all berry pickers and many of them immigrants, were living in a horse barn converted into cubicles. Six bunks were ranged along the wall of each cubicle. Sanitary facilities were in the back of the barn. Drinking water was trucked in from a nearby well. No building permit had been obtained for converting the barn into a place for human beings to live.

Officials who recognize the problem of such accommodation are reluctant to order it torn down. If they do, they say, the berrypickers will be forced either to live in tent cities or to go else where for work.

This is too narrow a view of the situation. Alternatives are available. For instance, how about a joint program involving the federal and provincial agriculture departments to provide decent living space, perhaps in trailers which could be rented to the workers?

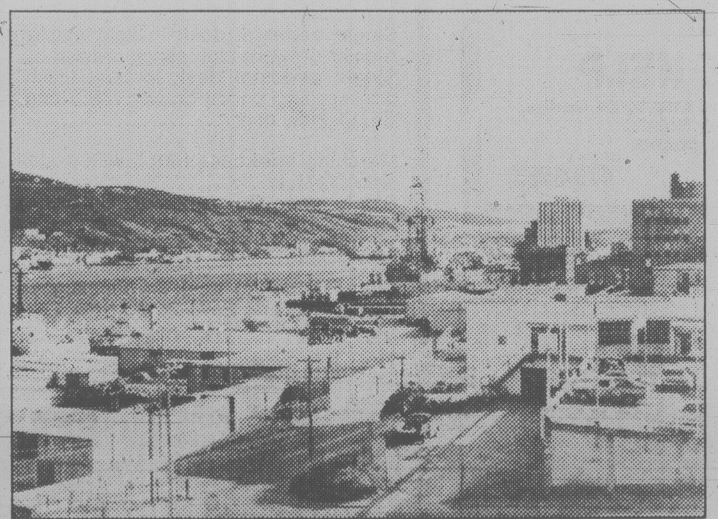
The Nfld. oil tiger is purring

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. — Getting onto a tiger isn't easy, but given courage and caution in the right proportions, and a well thought-out approach, it can be done. The hard part is getting off again.

Instead of a tiger, imagine, as is easy to do, the multinational oil companies. Instead of a lone, bold acrobat, imagine the society of Newfoundland, Canada's most intimate, most human, and most fragile.

On the getting up part, Newfoundland so far hasn's done at all badly. Memorial University sociologist Doug House, who has studied what has happened in Aberdeen in Scotland and in Stavanger in Norway, believes that "nowhere else in the world has more thought and care gone into the planning of oil development, than here."



Fragile St. John's may be spoiled by growth from oil boom.

Rigs came back

To those qualities of foresight, add the priceless asset of political courage. In 1977, Premier Brian Peckford, then energy minister, forced tough new regulations, modelled on Norway's, down the throats of the oil companies. The companies responded, as they always do, by pulling out their rigs. Peckford hung in, and the rigs — nine of them this year — came back.

Boldness now is earning its rewards. Half of the crews on the offshore rigs and supply boats are Newfoundlanders. True, most are just roustabouts or cooks or ordinary seamen. But the engineering, commerce, geology and physics graduates of Memorial University are going out to Alberta, and then are coming back. Half of the 30 professionals in Mobile's operations office here are Newfoundlanders.

Not until next spring will the commercial viability of the Hibernia field 200 miles offshore be established. Actual production will take another three to four years. But the ripples from Hibernia have already reached the shore. The provincial government's Offshore Industries Directorate lists 245 firms that can provide everything from helicopters to housing for turn-around rig crews. As the headliner among the local, "joint-venture" firms, Crosbie Offshore Services, which didn't exist two years ago, now does $36 million worth of business.

So far, so good. Better yet, Peckford is ready to do again what he's now done — twice — in 1977 over the oil regulations, and this year over a projected uranium mine in Labrador that he blocked because it failed to meet environmental standards. "I'm prepared to delay oil projects for one or two years, or more, if they don't come up with a rational, environmental, socio-economic, development plan," he says.

Thereafter, Peckford spun the conversation away to how offshore oil production and Newfoundland's mothballed (100,000 barrel-a-day) refinery at Come-By-Chance are "indissolubly linked", and about his preference for pipelining the oil to shore to a terminal, to maximize employment, rather than to have it sucked out at offshore site directly into tankers that then would steam away to distant markets.

Listening to Peckford, it is impossible not to believe that he means everything he says about squeezing the last drop of benefit from the oil boom, and hard to doubt that he will do what he says. Yet, in a way that is exasperating and depressing; here precisely is the root of Newfoundland's oil problem.

"The catch," says House, "is that the government's very success in dealing with the oil companies has committed us to oil development. The momentum of oil, once it gets going, is incredible. The more jobs that are created, the more local companies that are established, the more the economy, and the government, and the entire society, comes to depend upon oil."

The costs of dependency already can be toted up. The city of St. John's — "the weak link in the regulatory chain," in House's phrase — has approved one highrise office tower in the midst of a residential, heritage area, and is considering a half-dozen others that would turn the downtown core, now intimate and human and fragile, into a concrete canyon.

Can't be halted

The aesthetic demolition of St. John's unique cityscape can be halted. In Stavanger, for instance, all the oil companies' offices are in renovated and restored old buildings.

But the momentum of oil itself can't be halted. Even the Norwegian government, for all its Nordic nous, failed last year to impose stricter environmental regulations upon its oil companies, because in the end it couldn't accept the trade-off between less production and fewer jobs.

"The big oil vulture will destroy our culture / The things that they gave us / They said it would save us / Now I wish we had stood in its way," sang the Mummers' Troupe in their musical, Some Slick.

The interesting aspect of this satire was that it toured Newfoundland on a grant from an oil company, PetroCanada. That's momentum. That's the tiger purring.

New censorship by the CIA

The 40 Committee, which directed CIA covert actions, met in the White House on June 27, 1970, to consider what could be done about Chile and Salvador Allende. Henry Kissinger started the discussion by saying:

"I don't see why we need to stand by and watch a country go Communist due to the irresponsibility of its own people."

Kissinger's statement was quoted by Victor Marchetti and John Marks in their book, The CIA and the Cult of Intelligence. Or rather, it was quoted in their manuscript. CIA censors cut that passage, and 167 others, before the book was published in 1974.

The statement came out in other ways later and was printed widely in the press. But the CIA still refused to let Marchetti and Marks publish it. As recently as last winter, when the censors withdrew their objections to some of the 168 items cut from the book, they still said no to the Kissinger quotation.

No objection

Now, after all those years, the CIA has changed its mind. A new lawsuit was filed under the Freedom of Information Act to seek release of all the censored passages in the Marchetti book. And this month, in its answer to the suit, the government conceded that there was no security objection to publishing Kissinger's words.

The episode tells us a good deal about the way censorship works. The censors and the Justice Department lawyers who defend them always talk about the need to protect the national security. They make it seem as if publishing what they want to ban would disclose our nuclear codes, or bring Soviet missiles down on Washington. But almost always the real fear is that publication will embarrass someone.

In this case it is hard to see how there could have been any real security threat to the United States from publication. Allende was dead when the book first came out, and the record of CIA activity in Chile has long since been explored.

The arrogance of Kissinger's words, when seen in print, was no doubt embarrassing to him. But what he said at the meeting of the 40 Committee was more than a personal matter. It reflected what was and had been for years a prevailing attitude in the CIA and the White House: an almost casual willingness to intervene secretly in other countries with arms, money and murderous plots.

Whatever one thinks of the need for covert action, it is clear that the practice got out of hand — with blunders and excesses that hurt this country. It is now under greater control, in the White House and in Congress, only because some facts of what was going on leaked to the public.

Only an informed public can apply effective pressure for change in failed official policies. Censorship always tries to hide failure and abuse. It went on trying to conceal those words of Kissinger's for years after there was any conceivable security reason to do so — and only gave up, one suspects, when the bureaucrats figured that Kissinger was unlikely to be back in office soon, in a position to punish them.

The danger is that we now have a system of official censorship: The first in the peacetime history of the United States. Congress has not authorized it. The Constitution, many believe, stands in its way. But the federal courts, making law to meet what they consider the CIA's needs, have allowed the agency to censor what any former employee says for the rest of his life.

The latest incident in the development of this judge-made law of censorship occurred last week. Frank Snepp, who wrote about official blunders in the last days in Vietnam, gave the government all he earned from his book, Decent Interval. He wrote a check for $116,658.15 and promised to pay another $24,000 as soon as he can borrow it. He is now penniless.

Hardly anyone noticed the denouement of the Snepp case. But I think it was one of the blackest moments ever for freedom of speech and press in America.

Savage penalty

The Supreme Court's decree, carried out by the Justice Department with rigor, took Snepp's gross income from Decent Interval with no allowance for living expenses during the years he worked on the book. How many white-collar criminals — or gangsters — have thus had their gross income taken for violating the law? What politician or official has paid a fine of $140,000 for corruption or deceit?

No one even claims that Snepp disclosed any secrets in his book. But for publishing without permission he has paid a penalty savage for him and dangerous for the rest of us. The worst irony is the bland innocence of those who punished Snepp and imposed on us a system of censorship: Supreme Court justices who decided the case without hearing argument, two Carter attorneys-general and their assistants.

After the Sedition Act of 1798 lapsed, a shamed government remitted the fines of editors who had been convicted under it. Some day a government more sensitive than this one should do the same for Frank Snepp.

DuPonts defended

The Aug. 3 review of Leonard Mosley's book about the du Ponts opens with the preposterous assertion which the reviewer should have checked out by elementary homework and reference to his local library: "No one has ever written a book about the du Ponts because all attempts have been foiled by a conspiracy of silence." From that false premise the pejoratives flow easily without considering strong contrary views.

Reason alone should have alerted the reader. A dynasty does not retain a leadership position for more than a century and a half without attracting the literary attention of both the admirers and the Pegler and Nader types or their equivalent. We are in a phase when it is fashionable to attack great accomplishment.

If anyone been misled into believing that there are no other books on the du Pont saga, or that we have a new breakthrough revelation of family disputes or scandals then they have been sadly deprived of an existing great body of enjoyable, even inspiring, literature and insight into 180 years of U.S. history.

Apart from the occasional profiles in Time, Life, Fortune, and Saturday Review, the source material is so abundant and interesting that many writers in different languages have been induced to publish complete books about these fascinating people and their creativity. Four writers (other than Mosley) are represented at the Victoria Library. Chandler's and Salisbury's Pierre S. du Pont and the Making of the Modern Corporation is not listed. The library does own the 1978 book by John Gates and an earlier one by French journalist Max Dorian, translated and expanded in 1961 and 1962.

A couple of hours with these two last-mentioned (both with extensive acknowledgements of interviews and source material) will make it clear that there are friendlier points of view and that the deterrent factor of a pretended conspiracy of silence is an absurdity.

The hundreds of thousands of researchers and other visitors whose lives have been enriched at Longwood Gardens, Winterthur Museum, Hagley Museum, Brandywine Museum, and the Eleutherian Mills Historical Museum might take exception to a review salted with pejoratives such as "a grubby family," "wart encrusted," "this unpleasant person," without a single adjective to suggest the redeeming qualities of this remarkable family of achievers.

One cannot proceed very far in the fields of engineering, chemistry, education, art, botany and horticulture, pure research, finance, business administration, patents, industrial, technical and economic history, or of American history generally, without soon coming across the tremendous contributions of a du Pont. — David Gibb, 2876 Seapoint Drive.

For our children

In your edition of Aug. 1, you reproduced under the headline "Metric madness," an editorial from the Toronto Star. Although the emotional pitch of this editorial may be a bit higher than one might consider necessary, it asks a reasonable question: In the face of "reaction ranging from confused anger to disgruntled resignation" what is the "reason for such an expensive and bothersome business"?

The answer is one which comes up frequently when we are asked to do something we find unpleasant or inconvenient: We are doing it for our children and our grandchildren. The basic inconvenience of the changeover to metric units lies in the fact that necessarily during any changeover period people are asked to know both systems, and some people are asked to learn a new system rather late in their lives.

However, so long as we insist upon traditional units many people are going to have to know both systems. This includes not just exporters, but also importers, anyone who travels outside of the English-speaking countries and anyone dealing with products which have an international market. Whether we like it or not, it is a simple fact that the relative economic strength of those few nations stll using our traditional set of units is steadily decreasing.

We no longer have any possibility of imposing our system on others. We have only two possibilities. We can decide to be "bilingual" in units and learn both systems, or we can join the rest of the world in metric. It is much simpler for our children if they never have to learn that there are 16 ounces in a pound and 2000 pounds in a ton — a system which will seem as quaint to our grandchildren as does the old British monetary system of four farthings to the penny, 12 pennies to the shilling and 20 shillings to the pound seems to us. Even now, children just entering school will not have to bother to learn that there are 20 fluid ounces in a pint, two pints in a quart and four quarts in a gallon. These children have so much to learn anyway in our modern complex world that surely we can spare them the complications of an outdated measuring system, when they are going to have to learn the other system anyway. — Robert W. Stewart, Chief Executive Officer, Ministry of Universities, Science and Communications.

Rough journey

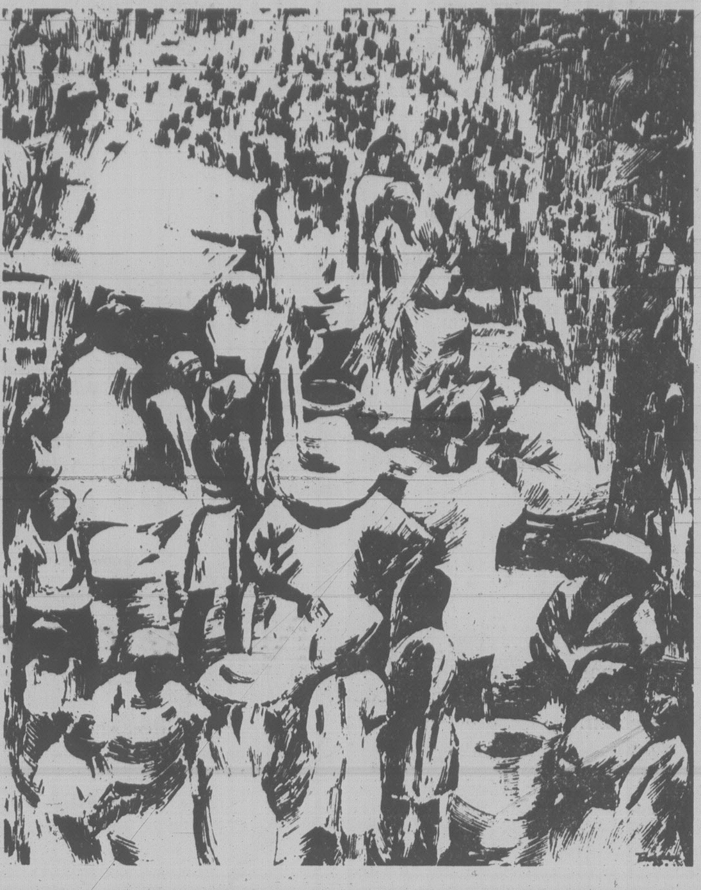
If one enjoys a vibrating machine for two hours, they should travel via the Flying Princess to Seattle. This is with comparatively placid waters. There is no way one can escape this shake-up. And what are the advantages? Scenery, yes, but not as attractive as can be viewed right from Victoria and up over the Malahat.

Most of the seating on this fast voyage is cramped and unless one complains, as I did, the air conditioning gives one chills.

I definitely do not recommend the Flying Princess for comfort. Better to fly if one is in a hurry. I sincerely hope they bring back the Marguerite or a ship like it, where one can be served in a deluxe dining room and have something to look at on board other than people. — Mrs. Gladys Coulthard, 308-105 Gorge Road East

World population explosion muted

By YOUSSEF M. IBRAHIM



LONDON — A major worldwide survey of 400,000 women in 61 countries shows that the population explosion that has plagued much of the world is easing. Fertility and birthrates in Third World countries and in the developed nations have significantly diminished in the past decade, the survey concluded.

In fact, new styles of living and changing morality have diminished fertility levels throughout Europe so drastically that they are pushing birthrates below the level at which existing populations are replaced, and the falling rates have prompted several alarmed governments to try to reverse the trend.

In the United States, the fertility rate has dropped from its peak of 3.5 children per woman in the late 1950s to 1.8 during the last decade. Despite the drop, however, the large number of young people resulting from the previously high rate means that the country's current population of 222.5 million can be expected to double in 99 years.

Worldwide, the pattern was found to have been partly influenced by a growing preference for smaller families in Asia and Latin America, widening use of contraceptives everywhere and the global advent of modernization and urbanization.

"The decline is well established, affects an important part of the world's population, and is rapid," Dr. Leon Tabah, director of the population division of the United Nations, told some 600 specialists on the subject from 93 countries who gathered here this month.

Marry later

Among other things, the massive survey has found that more couples are marrying later and using a variety of contraceptive methods to delay birth, and that increasing numbers of working women are restraining childbirth. The study also found that a new and better-educated generation of nearly a billion young people — emerging in the next decade with a more reserved attitude toward marriage and conception — will give the new trend greater momentum.

In addition, in a reversal of previously ambivalent policies, most governments in the Third World now support programs of family planning to slow population growth.

In Europe, however, the trend can have major economic and industrial implications, according to experts at the meeting. Among other things, the shrinking populations are likely to face serious labor shortages, while those who are in the work forces, diminishing at increasing rates, will have to bear a larger tax burden to support the growing numbers of the retired.

"The whole system which traditionally worked in favor of fertility has collapsed," said Prof. Milos Macura of Yugoslavia, project director of the survey and formerly director of the population division at the United Nations. "The Industrial Revolution, individualism, consumerism — in both Western and Eastern Europe and regardless of the political system of government — are sweeping away traditional pressures that favored the family."

The change affects European countries in differing degrees. In Western Europe the worst situation is that in West Germany, where the average number of births is down to 1.4 per woman, with 2.2 the mininum needed to maintain a steady population. Other Western European countries falling below the replacement level include Austria, Belgium, Britain, Denmark, Finland, France, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland.

In Eastern Europe, the depopulation phenomenon, although not as widespread, appears to be intensifying. While only East Germany falls below the replacement level, with an average fertility rate of 1.8 per woman, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland and Rumania are at or close to the replacement level.

Elsewhere, however, the scientists said the emerging trend offers no near-term relief from the population explosion, since the legacy of past fertility rates will continue to push the numbers up for years to come. According to projections, the earth's population will increase to six billion by the end of this decade, representing a 50 per cent increase over the 1978 total. The explosion may stop in the third quarter of the next century, when the planet is expected to have a population of 11 billion.

In general, the survey found, the women who want smaller families are those who live in urban areas, have received a measure of education and have worked outside their homes. A large and still unmet demand for family planning was found among a major segment of the women queried, and more than 30 per cent said their last birth was unwanted.

"Half of the women surveyed in all the developing countries we looked at said they don't want children," said German Rodriguez, a researcher with the survey staff. "Yet, half of those who said so are not using contraceptives, either because they have no access to them, or for a variety of reasons that range from social norms to apathy."

The use of contraceptives was found to be dependent on factors such as social and economic differentials, length of marriage and place of residence — whether in the country or the city.

Taboos gone

Researchers have found that in some cases a little bit of modernization can go the wrong way, sweeping aside social customs and taboos on sexual intercourse that naturally restrain childbirth, without replacing them with an offsetting use of contraceptives. In Africa and some parts of Asia, for instance, breast-feeding has always acted as a natural method of contraception. The practice has been replaced by bottle-feeding, however, and women become pregnant more frequently.

Religious restraints, which have acted as obstacles to the spread of family planning, seem to be weakening in the face of the population explosion in many countries.

Maria Henriques is a consultant in Brazil's Population and Demography Division of the Institute of Geography and Statistics. In her country, she said, the official position of the church is to fight against family planning. But, she added, "the lower tiers of the church hierarchy, like the village priests, don't go along with that. They are willing to confess women using oral contraceptives, although abortion is still out of the question."

The most dramatic change in governmental attitude toward fertility is taking place in China, the world's most populous nation, which did not participate in the survey but has expressed interest in starting one of its own. China's population is roughly estimated at one billion, representing a quarter of the world's population, and the country is about to launch its first comprehensive census since 1953.

Dr. Gu Xingyuan, a physician and statistician at Shanghai's First Medical College, said China now strongly promotes a policy of one child per family. Speaking through an interpreter, he said couples with one child were being given better housing and better jobs.

Measures to restrain the population were started in 1964, he said, "but they were disrupted by the Cultural Revolution. These efforts resumed in 1972, with a national network to distribute contraceptives."

STRAY FEATHERS

Harold Hosford

As the summer of 1980 ends its final month, it seems time to take the measure of the summer most Victorians will remember as the summer that wasn't. But, thanks to a cup of coffee with Wayne Campbell of the British Columbia Provincial Museum, this measure of the passing season will have nothing to do with the weather.

I caught Wayne on the fly recently — he's a hard guy to pin down — just after he'd gotten back from perambulating about northern British Columbia for several weeks with a team from the Museum, all in the interests of natural history. And, after listening to Wayne, I can't help wondering why anybody with an interest in this province's natural history spends summer in Victoria when there's all of northern British Columbia just waiting to be explored.

Wayne waxes ecstatic about the north, but it's hard to keep him on any one aspect of the subject, there are so many to talk about. But this much I did get out of our chat: as a result of the work done this summer in northern British Columbia, the record of the number of kinds of birds that nest in this province is richer by five.

Two of these, the Surf Scoter — common in winter around Victoria — and Smith's Longspur — one we never see here — were confirmations of long-held suspicions. Of the scoters, a family with six young at Evil Lake, northwest of Fort Nelson, in July did the trick. Smith's Longspur gained its place as a result of several nests found in the Haines Road country on the Alaska border by Susan Hanon and Katherine Martin of the University of British Columbia.

As for the really new stuff, the Snow Bunting leads the list. A nest with four young, found near the 7,000-foot level in the mountains of the extreme northwestern corner of the province not only established the bird's rights to the British Columbia list, but moved its breeding range in Canada several hundred miles south. Snow Buntings are noted for being one of the world's most northernly nesting species, calling Canada's arctic islands and the coast of the Arctic Ocean their summer home. The nest in British Columbia is the first south of the 60th parallel in Canada.

Another arctic bird — the Arctic Loon — which is a common transient in Active Pass in spring and a fairly regular winter visitor around Victoria, has been thought to nest in northern British Columbia, but until this summer there had been no hard evidence to support these suspicions. Now, three nesting records prove that the status of the Arctic Loon in northern British Columbia is no longer in question.

The Southern Narrows on Atlin Lake, Davie Hall Lake near Atlin, and Oregon Lake, north of Fort Nelson, all — with either eggs or young — made their contribution to the record.

Last, but by no means least, comes the Blue Jay — not the big dark, so-called, "blue" jay of coastal British Columbia, which is another bird more properly called Steller's Jay, but the bona fide, honest-to-goodness Blue Jay of the east.

The discovery of a pair of Blue Jays with young near Clayhurst on the Peace River in July, pushed the known nesting range of the species into British Columbia for the first time. The find was not a great surprise; Blue Jays had been well-established in Alberta's aspen parkland for a long time and it was only a short hop into our Peace River country for the Blue Jay to achieve "landed" status.

While the news of the five new avian residents for British Columbia is exciting in itself, listening to Wayne Campbell for a few minutes reveals that it's nothing compared to the potential of that vast chunk of as yet relatively unexplored — by birders — real estate "north of fifty-five."

Anyone for birding — in the north — next summer?

No way to treat a bomb

Russell Baker

Assignment: Ride a railroad operated by the U.S. government.

Purpose: Determine whether you would entrust an intercontinental rocket and an atomic bomb to the above mode of transportation.

Fuller explanation: The U.S. government plans to build and operate a railroad that will carry rockets and atomic bombs in circles in the western desert. The project will cost billions. We wish to determine whether the U.S. government has the know-how to carry off this project or whether it is in over its head.

Investigator's memorandum: Unable to find any government operated train that goes around in circles, so settled for travelling in a straight line from Baltimore to New York via Amtrak train called "The Crescent."

At Baltimore decided to book reserved club car seat since wanted to simulate problem of transporting atomic bomb as closely as possible and assumed government would want atomic bomb transported first class rather than coach.

Ticket agent unable to provide requested reserved seat. "Computer is down," he said. Fancy talk. Means computer is broken. Bad sign. If computer not working, not much chance of atomic bomb getting launched to correct target.

Agent said board train first, then ask conductor for reserved seat. Proceeded to waiting room carrying luggage weighing approximately same as atomic bomb and intercontinental rocket combined. Crescent 10 minutes late, according to bulletin board. Waited 10 minutes, then bulletin board said Crescent 20 minutes late. Amtrak man said Crescent sometimes four hours late.

Encouraged by this, since means Russians unable to take out American bomb by bombing Baltimore Station at Crescent's scheduled arrival time.

Aboard train, asked conductor for first class car to park bomb-weight luggage. No dice. Left first class cars off train, he said. "Suppose I was transporting an atomic bomb," I said.

"You'd have to park it in the aisle of the coach like everybody else," he said. Right on. All overhead luggage racks filled. All coach seats filled. All aisles cluttered with luggage.

Question: How expect government that can't transport luggage adequately by train to carry atom bomb and big missile around countryside without making nasty mess?

Unable to find seat, so sat on simulated bomb in aisle. Gave me the hot sweats thinking of U.S. government rail operators riding around sitting on atom bombs in coach aisles. Then discovered everybody in coach had hot sweats.

Asked woman beside me if she was sweating because also transporting simulated atom bomb. "No," she said. "Sweating because air-conditioning not working."

Very observant woman. Outside temperature that day 100 degrees. Inside temperature: 130 degrees. Asked conductor why air-conditioning not working. "Forgot to put water in at Washington," he said.

Question: If U.S. operated trains forget to put water in air-conditioner on 100-degree day, what chance they'll forget to put atom bomb in rocket missile on Doomsday?

Train windows steamed up so heavy couldn't see outside world. Strong sensation of travelling in submarine. Doesn't U.S. already have excellent submarines for transporting bomb and rocket? Why need land based submarine with overcrowded luggage racks?

Train slowed to crawl, making easy target for enemy missiles. "Workmen improving track and roadbed," said conductor. "When finished, train will ride smoother."

"When will that be?" Conductor very vague. Years and years in future, apparently. U.S. government not snappy railroad builders like Japanese and Europeans.

Question: If U.S. government requires years and years to improve existing track and roadbed and still can't remember water for the air-conditioner, can it build whole new railroad in Cactus Belt before end of 25th century?

Heard rumor of air-conditioning in diner, struggled to same through damp bodies clogging aisles of intervening coaches. Sure enough, cooler. Ordered cheeseburger. "Will you settle for hamburger?" asked waiter. "We're out of cheese."

Settled for hamburger, but very depressed about U.S. government train being out of cheese, since a railroad that can't maintain reliable cheese supply seems likely when the crucial moment comes to find out that it's out of warheads.

Question: Has anybody in the U.S. government who proposes this multibillion U.S. government-operated railroad for bombs and rockets ever ridden a U.S. government-operated railroad?

‘Enemy’ list drawn up in battle for farmland

By NORMAN GIDNEY

The old Veterans' Land Act, the greenbelt scheme, speculating farmers themselves and municipal zoning bylaws are all responsible for the erosion of prime agricultural land in B.C., Saanich council's special urban growth committee was told Thursday.

Planner Don South, formerly with the provincial highways ministry, and developer Gordon Denford identified these various "enemies" of farmland for the committee, composed of Ald. John Mika, former Saanich reeves Arthur Ash and George Chatterton and municipal planner Gil Laurenson.

Established earlier this year by council, Mika's committee is to develop a strategy for dealing with the problems that will occur when Saanich's "urban containment area" in the south is full, so more of the municipality's farmland doesn't disappear under subdivisions and shopping centres.

South said the VLA, which provided low-interest mortgages to veterans for housing lots up to two acres, is responsible for the loss of a great deal of productive agricultural acreage in Saanich and the rest of Canada.

"A lot of farmland went that way," he said. "When I was out at Royal Oak during the war fighting the Japanese with my fountain pen, I remember wheat being taken on the old VLA farm on Wilkinson Road. They were going farms."

The greenbelt scheme where provincial government funds have been used to buy up buffer strips, and the public demand for areas to be protected, has also put pressure on other lands — farmland — for development.

He mentioned the Highlands as an example.

"A lot of people live there and they don't want anyone else.

"Another enemy is the farmer himself, who is looking at his farm as a pension."

He also put governments on his enemies' list.

"We have the new Helmcken Hospital on Class 2 farmland. Because the land was cheap. Look where all the schools went — Spectrum. They were farms when I moved out there. The cheap land was the motivation."

Denford singled out policies set by municipal politicians as a major factor.

Saanich has set a density of no more than eight persons per acre in the new subdvisions in the North Quadra area.

"You can't take 247 acres behind the urban containment boundary and limit it to eight persons per acre and protect our farmland.

"Under present policies the urban containment boundary will be between the Sidney Hotel and Sidney Spit. We'll lose it all."

"There is such a tremendous pressure for housing and we're not meeting it properly," said Denford, former chairman of Saanich's Advisory Planning Commission.

Rigid engineering requirements call for 66-foot road allowances, and this alone can take a third of the land in a new development. Red tape and bureaucratic barriers are also blocking orderly development of Saanich's available development sites within the urban area.

Aldermen uninformed about planning — he mentioned no names — and a public allowed to get away with making outrageous and unfactual statements at public hearings about developers and individual projects are also to blame, Denford said.

"There's an attitude of confrontation rather than co-operation with legitimate developers."

Is tax-free farmland a possible solution?

How to save farmland from being blacktopped and built upon?

The answers suggested Thursday at the first meeting of Saanich's special urban growth committee aren't guaranteed solutions, but a combination of tax relief and more apartment buildings was one way proposed.

Planner Don South said a possible solution to the problem of disappearing farmland would be to relieve farmland — except for a farmer's own house and yard — of all property taxes.

The only taxable portion of the farm would be the farmer's house and yard, a residential neighborhood-sized lot that would pay the same taxes everyone else does. But the producing farmland would be exempt.

Committee chairman John Mika said he had learned the Union of B.C. Municipalities will discuss a resolution proposing such a scheme at its annual meeting next month, although passage by delegates isn't guaranteed.

Former Saanich reeve George Chatterton, another member of the committee, said the whole question of taxing farmland is confusing.

He had tried to discover from oficials of the Assessment Authority of B.C. how the present rationale for assessing the taxable value of farmland came to be, but was unable to get an answer.

"It's not related to market value, not to profitability . . ."

But Chatterton said he was told that in relation to other types of property, taxes on agricultural land have declined proportionately over the last decade.

In answer to a question from observer Ald. Mary Casilio about property owners getting a tax shelter through hobby farms and the like, South said farmland should be taxed at full value if it's not being farmed.

The yardstick now used to distinguish farmland for taxation purposes is if the property is bringing at least $1,600 in farm products in a year.

Developer Gordon Denford said imaginative types of multiple dwellings will have to be considered, and present zoning which limits apartment buildings to the busy intersections like McKenzie and Quadra will have to be changed to allow them in more desirable areas.

Denford — who just had a parcel in Lake Hill district rezoned by council for a small apartment block in the midst of single-family homes — said municipalities will have to go for higher densities to preserve farmland.

Agreement near on Roberts Bank

An agreement between the provincial and federal governments to triple the size of the Roberts Bank coal port should be reached within a week, says provincial Industry Minister Don Phillips.

"What we're down to is getting the legal terminology into the final agreement," Phillips said Thursday. "I think we've got everything just about straightened out."

Under a tentative agreement reached in March, Ottawa is to finance a $47 million expansion of the superport, which would triple the port's handling capacity to 30 million tonnes a year.

Numac Oil and Gas rose 2⅛ to $35, Ocelot Industries A 1½ to $34½ and Total Petroleum North America 1¼ to $29¾. Sulpetro B was off ⅝ to $25 and Canadian Natural Resources ⅜ to $20⅛.

Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) - Prices were mixed in heavy trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. Volume at mid-day was 3,579,178 shares.

Of issues traded, 153 advanced, 130 declined and 201 were unchanged.

B.C. Resources Investment Corp. led traders in the industrials and advanced .10 to $6.90 on 27,765 shares. Renn Industries was unchanged at $2 on 11,800 shares, Taro Industries remained steady at $5.50 and Canadian Javelin declined .10 to $1.50 on 3,196. Kaiser Resources remained steady at $33.50 and Balco Industries was unchanged at $7⅞.

Mundee Mines Ltd. led resource and development board traders and advanced .05 to $1.20 on 275,100 shares. Sunexco Energy jumped .20 to $4.50 on 133,700 shares, Waddy Lake Warrants climbed .15 to $2 on 55,900 and Highwood Resources advanced .12 to $2.12 on 53,950. Tandem Resources advanced .07 to $1.09 on 95,500 shares, Warstar was unchanged at $1.70 and Semper Resources rose .05 to $2.65 on 41,800 shares. Stanholm Resources was unchanged at $1.35 and Backer Resources remained steady at .35.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices surged in heavy trading as a report of a leveling off in the consumer price spiral and Senate progress on a tax-cut bill outweighed news of a spreading prime rate rise.

The labor department said consumer prices remained steady in July as home mortgage rates fell. Mortgage rates since have turned upward along with other interest rates, and most major banks raised their prime lending rate a quarter-point to 11.25 per cent.

Senator Russell Long (Dem La.), meanwhile, said he beieves the Senate will pass a $39-billion tax-cut bill.

Oil issues were sharply higher despite news that Indonesia is cutting some oil prices in light of a world petroleum glut.

Mobil, which announced an apparent gas find off the Cameroon coast in Africa, rose 1 to $74⅜. Texaco, which reported a German North Sea oil find, climbed ¾ to $38⅜. Phillips Petroleum jumped 2¼ to $42¾.

London

LONDON (Reuter) — The London stock market was mixed at the close of a quiet session.

The Financial Times Index of 30 industrials closed at 498.9, up 1.0.

Industrials and Canadian stocks were mixed while gold shares eased.

TD growing in Alberta

CALGARY (CP) — Consolidation within the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce may mean closing of branches elsewhere in the country, but it is unlikely to stop growth in Alberta, a bank official reports.

The bank announced earlier its expects a net decrease of branches around the country this year. It lost a net 16 branches last year.

But a net increase is expected in Alberta, Victor Nordheimer, the bank's Calgary vice-president and regional general manager, said in an interview.

He said some branches may be closed, but others will be opened.

Foreign exchange

MONTREAL (CP) — Friday's foreign exchange nominal selling rates at 11 a.m. EDT supplied by the Bank of Montreal.

These rates are called nominal because they fluctuate during the day and vary at each bank. x-Fixed monthly rates.

Broadbent visiting Poland

WARSAW (AP) — Ed Broadbent, leader of Canada's New Democratic Party, arrived in Poland today for talks with political leaders and a brief vacation in the mountains.

Broadbent, who was travelling with his wife, arrived in Gdansk by train from East Germany for a look at the situation in the strikebound city and then proceeded to Warsaw, a spokesman for the Canadian Embassy said.

The official said the embassy was not involved in Broadbent's trip to Poland.

Later in the day, Broadbent was scheduled to meet with representatives of parliament's foreign relations committee.

Polish strikers dismiss offers as sops

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Government negotiators met with worker committees across Poland's strike-paralyzed Baltic coast today in efforts to end nine days of walkouts by an estimated 130,000 workers.

Polish dissidents dismissed the government offers as "only small concessions" and insisted the strike is pro-democratic, not anti-socialist.

As Communist Party leader Edward Gierek's government sought a way out of the tense impasse, there still was no word on whether authorities would press charges against dissident leader Jacek Kuron and at least 23 other Polish activists detained by police.

The Polish government today denied a report by a London newspaper that Gierek made a quick trip to Moscow to confer with Soviet leaders about the strikes. Some Western diplomats have expressed concerned that Poland's Russian neighbors might use military force to end the walkouts.

Rumors circulated that Warsaw would be hit by a general strike, and worried motorists formed long lines at gas stations in the capital.

Dissident sources reported the strikes in Gdansk, Gdynia and other Baltic coast cities had shut down 420 plants by Thursday night. A broadcast from Szczecin, on the border with East Germany, said a paper mill in Kozno and the Polmo auto equipment plant were among the new shutdowns.

Dissident sources reported the arrest of eight more of their leaders in Warsaw and one in Krakow, southern Poland. Those rounded up in the capital included Leszek Moczulski, president of the Committee of Independent Poland, and Wieslaw Kecik, a leading member of the Committee for Social Self-Defense.

Kuron, the chief spokesman for the Committee for Social Self-Defence, and 15 other members were arrested in Warsaw Wednesday night, but one of them was released Thursday, the sources said.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said the U.S. government took note of the arrests of the dissidents "with concern" and urged the quick release of those seized. Previously the State Department refused to comment on the Polish crisis, saying it was a matter for the Polish government and people to resolve.

Sporadic strikes began around the country after Gierek's regime withdrew meat subsidies on July 1, and prices jumped. The current massive strike wave began Aug. 14 at the giant V.I. Lenin Shipyard in Gdansk and quickly spread through the Gdansk-Gdynia-Sopot industrial triangle on the central Baltic coast.

Gdansk was also the scene of anti-price strikes and riots in 1970 which resulted in the death of at least 50 people and the replacement of Communist Party chief Wladyslaw Gomulka by Gierek. But this time the strikers are demanding free trade unions and other radical political reforms as well as wage increases to offset the rise in meat prices.

Meanwhile, in Prague, the Communist party newspaper Rude Pravo on Thursday marked the 12th anniversary of the 1968 Warsaw pact invasion of Czechoslovakia with a defence of what it called that year's "internationalist assistance."

"Today, Czechoslovakia is again a firm part of the Socialist community," the party newspaper said.

"Right-wing forces, with active support by reactionary elements abroad, sought a counter-revolutionary reversal in Czechoslovakia in 1968-1969.

"But the internationalist assistance by the Soviet Union and other socialist countries foiled that design."

The 1968 invasion by Soviet, East German, Hungarian, Bulgarian and Polish forces was ordered by Moscow to block widespread political liberalization allowed by party leader Alexander Dubcek.

NARY A GLANCE on Thursday indicated that retiring Rear-Admiral Michael Martin was casting a parental eye when inspecting a contingent of Royal Canadian Sea Cadets from HMCS Quadra. The admiral's son, PO Andrew Martin of Victoria's Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps, is second from the right in the front rank. The cadets joined regular and reserve servicemen to fake part in a change-of-command ceremony on the Naden parade ground of CFB Esquimalt. Thirteen-gun salutes and a flypast by aircraft from CFB Comox added color to the ceremony. (M. Cpl. Mac Johnson photo)

TOWN TALK

Ald. Mary Casilio summed up in one anecdote Thursday the state of relations between Victoria and Saanich these days.

She was trying to drive out of downtown Victoria earlier this week, she told council's urban growth committee, and grew more and more exasperated at the traffic.

Her car was forced to a halt heading up Government Street and who should draw up beside her but Victoria Mayor Bill Tindall.

She proceeded to chew his ear off about the terrible congestion, and asked how Victoria could ask Saanich to restrain plans for shopping centre expansion when the city hadn't cleaned up its own act. Drivers wouldn't be able to get into the downtown core.

Tindall replied, according to Casilio: "We'll let everyone park out in Saanich and come downtown by bus."

He meant it as a joke, Town Talk thinks, but it griped Casilio as a typical example of the city's attitude of expecting all the gravy for itself.

She was still fuming as she told the tale to the committee.

One Victoria area boater decided to end the summer-long beer drought by nipping over to the U.S, and bringing back a healthy supply.

Trouble was a Sidney RCMP patrol boat spotted the man putting his beer-laden boat on a trailer at a public launch next to the Sidney wharf.

"We'll have that," the officers said and hauled away the boater's 50 cases of precious brew.

The boater has 30 days to appeal the seizure. If he lets it pass, the supply will be destroyed, a custom's official said.

Customs has had relatively few problems with beer smuggling in this area and same is true in the Lower Mainland.

There have been about 100 to date, mostly small seizures, says Staff-Sgt. Darrel Beere, the appropriately named head of the section.

CHEK-TV video shader Jim Sprague wasn't at work this morning. The word is he headed for Winnipeg in a big hurry.

Why the rush?

It seems the guy responsible for ensuring a clear picture when the station broadcasts won the big one in the Western Express.

That's $100,000. Tax free. All in a lump. At least five years of no work if he wants it.

Robert Johnson of our town is concerned that Canada may have more admirals than ships.

He asked Town Talk to get a breakdown on numbers of officers, non-commissioned officers and other ranks in the armed forces.

We found that we do have more ships than admirals or officers of their equivalent rank — but barely. There are 33 admirals or officers of their equivalent rank in the armed forces and 41 ships.

As of June 30, the armed forces had 80,253 people in uniform. Of these 13,314 were officers, 2,241 were officer cadets, 43,588 were non-commissioned officers and 21,110 were privates.

Attending the 49th annual Toastmasters International convention in Milwaukee, Wis. this week are Victorians Graham Garman and Victor Lindal.

Garman's there to accept an award for the B.C. district which is recipient of the international's Distinguished District Award for 1980.

Garman, immediate past governor of the district, says the B.C. clubs surpassed all goals set by the international by achieving a 30-per-cent increase in membership and eight-per-cent growth in new club formation last year.

Lindal will represent the region in the World Speaking championships. He is one of only nine finalists in the competition representing 80,000 Toastmasters world-wide.

Master magician Tony Eng will spring into action tonight to help out the Victoria City Chess Club which has been experiencing financial difficulty.

Among the feats of illusion and prestidigitation he will perform will be levitation and a Houdinian escape from a straitjacket highlighted by his attempt to beat the world time record for this form of escape.

The performance is at 8 in the University of Victoria Student Union Building theatre.

Wielding a blanket-sized cheque, members of the Victoria Italian Assistance Centre showed this week they have a big heart.

On hand for the presentation to B.C. Heart Foundation secretary James Fisher were centre president, Eugenio Zappella and secretary Mario Morettin.

Proceeds from a benefit dinner last month in which many of the Italian community donated their time and effort allowed members to write out a cheque for $2,509.03.

We aren't sure who gave the three cents, but every penny counts these days.

'Promises and plans'

By PAT DUFOUR

It's going to take more than promises and plans to enable the Canadian armed forces to do their job, Rear-Admiral William Hughes, the new commander maritime forces Pacific, said Thursday.

There are promises of new ships and plans to update existing ones, he said in a ceremony in which retiring Rear-Admiral Michael Martin handed over command.

"But fisheries rights are not protected by good intentions and wars are not deterred by paper tigers," Hughes said.

"We have seen the failure of countries and allies who went to the table with a weak hand and their bluff was called."

He said the main thrust of the armed forces is to deter war, not wage it. A strong deterrant, he said, cost only money but war itself destroyed lives and property.

He questioned why only two per cent of Canada's gross national product goes toward defence.

"At one time we were fourth from the top instead of second from the bottom (in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization) in terms of GNP devoted to defence," he said.

He said the armed forces need dedicated people who will join the service at an early age, enduring the frustration of aging equipment and separation from their families, in order to form a nucleus of future leaders. He said it may take eight years to design and build a ship but to create a good training system and the leaders necessary to make it work takes longer.

Martin, in his retirement speech, said the threat of war is real.

"It is not as remote as they would have us believe."

He said armed forces personnel are "the most dedicated and loyal Canadians that exist." He complimented members of the reserve forces and sea cadets for their performance, dedication and excellence.

Time-shares approved by planners

Time-sharing in the C3-H harbor commercial zone on the Victoria waterfront has received the approval of the Advisory Planning Commission.

The decision — if ratified next week by city council — means developer Sam Bawlf may go ahead with an "interval occupancy" scheme for his controversial nine-story condominium project at 1234 Wharf Street.

"There wasn't anybody of any significance who said this wasn't a good land use," said one source.

Bawlf said Tuesday at the APC public meeting when he made a pitch for allowing time-shares that he was being discriminated against by the city.

Earlier this year, council decided to allow time-sharing in most other commercial zones, but not the C-3H zone, which stretches from Hartwig Court on Wharf to the Johnson Street bridge and includes Bawlf's project now under construction, McQuade's, Reeson Park and two small heritage buildings.

Bawlf has sold units in the building to a number of small investors, who want to be able in turn to sublease the luxury condominiums when they are not living here.

The APC also approved, after lengthy debate, a small hotel proposed for the corner where Douglas and Blanshard join at the entrance to Beacon Hill Park, but they recommended the seven-story, 64-room structure be reduced one storey to lower the density.

It will require rezoning from T-1 limited transient zoning to CA-4 central area commercial district zoning.

The triangular property has been occupied for more than 20 years by the unfinished Beaconville Apartments.

Worm war

A $9.5-million program to tackle the spruce budworm problem in North America was approved this week at the Pacific Forest Research Centre, 506 West Burnside.

The approval was made by members of the Joint Policy and Program Council of the Canada-United States (CANUSA) research program on spruce budworm.

The current outbreak of spruce bedworm in the eastern part of the continent has infested 40.4 million hectares of forest while in the west there are almost 2.4 million hectares under attack.

Strike backed at Camosun

Camosun College could lose the services of 155 non-teaching staff early next week as the employees voted Thursday in favor of a strike to back contract demands.

Pete Driedger, area representative for the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE), said 72-hour-strike notice will likely be served today.

The union has asked mediator Peter Dowding to withdraw from the dispute, a step which must be taken before any strike action is legally possible.

Driedger said Dowding will contact college officials to see if there is any willingness to hold further talks.

He said negotiators for CUPE, Local 2081, have never closed the door on renewed discussions and would be willing to meet with the college representatives again.

New talks on moving tank farms

By NORMAN GIDNEY

Oil companies have begun discussions about moving their Victoria and Nanaimo oil tank farms into the B.C. Development Corporation's new industrial park at Duke Point in Nanaimo harbor.

"Reports this month indicate Gulf, Shell and Chevron (Standard) have opened discussions on a joint tank farm on a 20-acre location at Duke Point," says the current Nanaimo Harbor Commission newsletter.

A spokesman for Shell Canada Ltd. said the move to Nanaimo is definitely on, although some supply facilities would remain in the Victoria area.

Western Canada operations manager John Servais said today other options such as building underground tanks in Victoria are still being investigated but he said it is almost certain Shell will operate out of Duke Point by next year.

Gulf, Shell and Standard now supply the Victoria area with gasoline, home heating oil and other petroleum products from tank farms located on leased provincial government land in the Songhees reserve in Victoria West.

Leases for two of the companies expire in a year, while Gulf's lease is up in 1987.

Roy Brown, spokesman for Standard, said his company is still evaluating various sites to serve southern Vancouver Island — but none are in the Victoria area.

Servais said the underground proposal put forward by Ald. Bob Wright earlier this year has a number of drawbacks.

"I think the underground thing has a number of unworkable considerations to it," Servais said.

When the move to Duke Point was first suggested last fall, it was thought the Victoria area might lose some 200 jobs but indications are the loss will be smaller. Servais said his company would need only three to five people to operate its tank farm operation at Duke Point.

Furnace oil supplies would move through Nanaimo and tanker trucks would make deliveries to Victoria after filling up at Duke Point, he said. However, it hasn't been determined whether the smaller trucks which make home deliveries would also have to load at Duke Point.

Wright said as far as the city is concerned the underground tank idea is still alive.

"They're still looking at it," he said, referring to the oil companies.

The alderman, who is chairman of council's land use planning and zoning committee, said council plans to move soon on the special zoning for the Songhees reserve, where the city wants to see apartment, townhouse and hotel accommodation for several thousand people.

"If there's any interest on the part of the oil companies I expect it to surface this fall."

Wright said even if the tank farms are moved to Duke Point, the companies still need a transfer point somewhere in the Victoria area. Big tanker trucks wouldn't be able to back down a driveway to fill an individual homeowner's furnace oil tank.

Terry Farmer, the Chamber of Commerce executive who has kept a watching brief on the tank farms for the last several months, said reports he has seen indicate an underground tank farm would be feasible.

Spinoff for locals in garbage plan

A money-saving pilot project with a spinoff benefit for the community has been proposed by Victoria Ald. Robin Blencoe.

He wants the city to introduce one-man curbside garbage pickup and spend the money saved on some community project in the same neighborhood.

Blencoe worked out details of the scheme with city engineer John Sansom.

If city council approves, Blencoe wants a neighborhood, such as Fairfield, to volunteer for the 12-month trial.

If 1,000 homes participated, the city would save about $30,000 during the year, Blencoe said.

That money, he said, would be spent on a community centre or other neighborhood project.

"That way, the community would directly benefit from the savings, rather than seeing the money returned to general revenue."

Homeowners would have to take their garbage containers to the curb where one man operating a side-loading truck would pick it up. Now a crew of at least three men is necessary for each garbage pickup route.

The problem, Blencoe said, might be that older people couln't carry heavy garbage containers to the curb.

"We have a lot of elderly people in Victoria and it may necessary for neighbors to help those who can't carry a garbage can. That's why I want a neighborhood to volunteer for the project," he said.

If successful, he added, the program could be introduced city-wide, but he would recommend that it be done over a number of years to avoid staff layoffs.

"Obviously, I wouldn't accept any program that put people out of their jobs, but if it's done slowly, those whose jobs become redundant could be reallocated to other jobs," he said.

The engineer estimates the introduction of one-man pickup throughout the city would save $300,000 a year, but the city would initally have to spend $400,000 on a fleet of trucks with side-loading capacity.

Blencoe said the pilot project would be done with two leased trucks.

"I hope we can find a neighborhood to volunteer for this project."

Ferry dock neighbors put up with plenty

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — Holidays are happy times for most people — but not those living near the ferry dock at Horseshoe Bay

If any of the 600 residents decide to stay home on a sunny Canada Day or Labor Day weekend life can be hell on earth.

That's when it seems most of the 2.5 million people and more than one million cars trundle through the bay on their to and from Vancouver Island, the Sunshine Coast or Bowen Island.

Residents put up with a steady rattling of windows, squealing of tires and ferry noise vibrations.

Locals also find themselves kept out or imprisoned in the area by lineups stretching for kilometres.

Adding to the problem is truck traffic. One story which still brings grim laughter to terminal employees is about an elderly woman who was trying to pay her ferry fare while the booth attendant's attention was frozen on a truck travelling out of control toward them.

As the truck zoomed past the other side of the booth into the parking area, the woman remarked indignantly: "If I have to pay to go to Nanaimo then that truck driver should too."

Since then, checkpoints at the top of a long hill into the terminal have been improved but officials admit if a truck struck a ferry lineup, ambulance and rescue personnel would have problems reaching victims.

The B.C. Ferry Corp. now is considering moving all truck traffic to Tsawwassen, south of Vancouver, and instituting a run to Nanaimo from there. It is surveying trucking lines to find out what the economic impact would be.

But even if truck traffic is removed, there still is the problem of people, residents say.

HEU aims to force 8% pay issue

The Hospital Employees' Union walked out of an arbitration hearing Thursday and said it will apply for an Labor Relations Board order to force the Health Labor Relations Association to make complete payment of an eight-per-cent wage increase that was scheduled Aug. 1.

The dispute, which involves the holdback of some increases pending implementation of a job classification system, led to a sit-in by some 1,000 HEU members at several small hospitals in Victoria and Vancouver a week ago.

HEU secretary-business manager Jack Gerow said there were other flareups Thursday including a wildcat job action of Red Cross employees in Vancouver, a demonstration while Health Minister Rafe Mair was speaking at Royal Inland Hospital in Kamloops, and a threatened walkout at the hospital in Quesnel.

He said there could be more trouble although the union executive is urging members to continue working until the union has the opportunity to present its case to the LRB.

On Tuesday Ed Peck, chairman of an arbitration tribunal, ruled that HLRA had violated the collective agreement by not paying everyone the eight per cent increase. The same tribunal was responsible for the collective agreement, which had to be arbitrated.

The HLRA, the bargaining arm for the industry, has argued that about a third of the 20,000 employees would have to be held to four per cent until a job classification system determined what their wages should be.

Because of the urgency of the situation, Peck called a hearing Thursday to deal with the classification system.

The union said its bargaining committee walked out following several hours of discussion.

Another bid for monastery

DUNCAN — A controversial Quebec-based religious order is making another bid for a zoning change that would permit construction of a monastery on 45 acres it owns on Riverbottom Road about eight kilometres west of here.

The application, filed recently by the Apostles of Infinite Love, is expected to appear before the Cowichan Valley Region Board next month.

The CVRD rejected an earlier application filed by the order in February after residents objected strenuously to rezoning the site from rural to institutional.

The board obtained an injunction restraining the monks from continuing to build the monastery which had been started without CVRD approval.

Since then, however, the apostles have circulated a petition gathering support for their project.

The apostles have also begun construction of a garden shelter on the property in contravention of the injunction but regional planner Howard Schesser said the regional board was prepared to issue a building permit for the 160-square foot structure which will be used as a shelter for tomatoes.

Before the judge

A Seattle man Thursday became the fifth American this week to plead guilty in Victoria provincial court to fishing unlawfully in Canadian waters.

Vaclav Beran, 41, said his radar was broken when he was spotted Wednesday fishing on Constance Bank about half a mile inside the Canadian boundary.

"I don't know where I was," said Beran.

He had assumed he was in the right position because of what he assumed were other fish boats but one turned out to be the federal fisheries patrol vessel.

He was fined $650 and his $124.90 catch was confiscated.

Judge William Ostler told an 18-year-old woman who had pleaded guilty to fraud she didn't seem particularly repentant.

"Not really," replied Bernadette Watier, of no fixed address.

"I am sorry to hear that," said Ostler who then sentenced her to one month in jail.

The woman stole a $350 cheque while working as a housekeeper for a Pemberton Road man who had befriended her. The cheque was taken from his mail July 31 and cashed.

Watier left soon after for Edmonton and returned Wednesday when she was arrested.

Questioned on her background, the accused said she had no permanent home, was unaware of the location of her parents and spent her time travelling. At the time of the offence, she had been in Victoria four months after a period in Williams Lake.

Two Campbell River men who arranged for a friend to pick them up March 2 outside the Jordan River detention camp had four months each added to their terms.

Frank Jeffery, 23, and James Smart, 24, pleaded guilty to being unlawfully at large.

A corrections officer overheard Jeffery on the phone making arrangements to be picked up near the camp. The men were arrested shortly after they entered the getaway car later that day.

Crown prosecutor Nick Lang asked for a substantial sentence for the men because of the increasing number of such incidents.

A 19-year-old Sidney man appeared on two charges of breach of probation laid in connection with an earlier theft charge.

Harold Knight of Fifth Street had been forbidden to drive until Dec. 31 under a probation order but did so twice. He was fined $200 for the first occurrence, and sentenced to 14 days for the July 17 breach which involved an accident.

On the latter incident, Knight also was fined $75 for not having a valid driver's licence.

A 25-year-old man who told the court he had a responsible position at a local hotel was told by Ostler he had "a very irresponsible driving record."

Robert Rogowski, 1042 Pandora, pleaded guilty to impaired driving on July 22. Rogowski had two previous impaired convictions, but the judge noted the last one was three years ago.

Ostler fined him $2,000 and placed him on probation for six months.

Others fined for drinking and driving: Donald Rawson, 18, of CFB Esquimalt, $400; William McKee, 24, of 4073 Hatfield, $450; John Sam, 36, of 1272 Stelly's Crossroad, $75.

Petitions challenge N. Cowichan zoning

DUNCAN — Doman Industries Ltd. and two businessmen will challenge North Cowichan's new zoning bylaw.

B.C. Supreme Court in Vancouver on Monday will consider petitions from the lumber company and Bert Rodenbush and Norman Rooke.

At issue is the section of the bylaw limiting industrial expansion on the Cowichan River estuary. A development permit from the municipal council is now required before a building permit can be issued in the new industrial restricted zone.

Doman's Cowichan Bay sawmill and a parcel of land owned by Doman and leased to Rodenbush and Rooke are within the restricted zone.

Doman's claims the bylaw restricts the firm to the point any plant changes must receive council approval.

Vice-president Joseph Frumento said it's imperative the company have freedom to develop as world lumber markets dictate.

It's the second time Rodenbush and Rooke have challenged North Cowichan's zoning bylaws.

In July 1977 they succeeded in having a bylaw amendment upgrading their land from rural to rural restricted quashed by the supreme court.

Their intention to develop a shake mill at the Cowichan Bay site has not changed since they first applied for a building permit in 1976.

Stumpage special

A special stumpage rate has been granted a Prince George pulp company which plans an on-site chipping experiment utilizing wood which would otherwise be wasted, Forests Minister Tom Waterland said Thursday.

Northwood Pulp and Timber Ltd. will pay stumpage at the rate of 10 cents a cubic metre for timber on about 200 hectares near Prince George. Minimum stumpage rate now is $1.20 a cubic metre.

Waterland said the rate was established under a section of the Forest Act which permits a special rate where it is considered beneficial to the forest management of the area.

Consumer star rises: publisher

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian newspapers, radio and television are going to have to turn their attention to the consumer in the future and be more critical of the business community, Vancouver Sun publisher Clark Davey said Thursday.

"Business and the media have been on a long honeymoon," Davey told 120 high school delegates to a Junior Achievers of Canada conference at University of British Columbia.

"Now we have a new girl-friend clamoring for attention — the consumer. The rising wave of consumerism is going to demand it."

Davey expressed concern for the media's credibility in the eyes of the public, but dismissed the idea that the media is involved in a conspiracy to protect corporations or selected politicians.

"I'm concerned as a journalist by the credibility problem all media have with the public," he said.

But mistakes in newspapers are mistakes in accuracy and judgment, not the result of a conspiracy.

"The media does have an over-riding responsibility to be accurate," he said, but he credited newspapers with being more prepared than radio or television to admit mistakes.

"There has not been the same pressure applied to radio and television to correct mistakes."

Sun energy subsidies pushed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's solar energy picture would be a lot brighter if the federal government subsidized homeowners installing alternative energy technology, Dr. Ronal Larson, of the U.S.-based Solar Energy Research Institute said Thursday.

Larson, one of North America's leading alternative energy researchers and guest of honor at a Pacific National Exhibition Energy Day luncheon, told about 100 people that Canada should climb on the solar energy bandwagon before it's too late.

In a interview, Larson said the United States government wants to rely on solar energy for 20 per cent of its energy needs by the year 2000. Canada, he said, should follow suit.

"To help meet that goal, the U.S. government has a program of solar tax credits that returns 40 per cent of the first $10,000 spent by people installing units," he said. "Colorado has an additional 30-per-cent subsidy.

CRTC notice of decision

Decision CRTC 80-516, Renewal of licences from 31 March 1981 to 30 Sept. 1981.
In Decision CRTC 79-673, the CRTC announced a change in its practice of issuing licences with an expiry date of 31 March. The Commission indicated that an expiry date of 30 September was preferable as this will permit the scheduling of public hearings for licence renewal applications between the months of January and June; and will allow the Commission and interested parties to have more up-to-date and complete financial data and programming information than is presently the case. Accordingly, the Commission renewed specific licences, due to expire 31 March 1980, until 30 September 1980. In addition the Commission stated that six-month renewals for specific licences expiring 31 March 1981, 1982, 1983 and 1984 would be issued at a later date. The Commission hereby renews those licences expiring 31 March 1981 for a period of six months expiring 30 September 1981, subject to the same conditions as specified in the current licences.
Complete texts of CRTC decisions are published in the "Canada Gazette," Part I, which is generally available for viewing in reference libraries; single copies are sold at bookstores carrying Canadian government publications. Decisions may also be read at CRTC offices. Public interest groups are invited to contact the CRTC for copies of CRTC public documents.

Gov't lying on wardens says Greenpeace head

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. environment department is lying about supervision of hunters at Spatsizi Wilderness Park, Greenpeace Foundation president Patrick Moore said Thursday.

Back in Vancouver after spending a week in the provincial park with 11 other Greenpeace members who were trying to stymie trophy hunters, Moore said the group saw no conservation officers in the 1.5-million acre park.

"Nobody has entered the park to go trophy hunting, and no fish and wildlife branch personnel are in the area," he said.

But in a telephone interview later, Andy Ackerman, regional conservation officer for northwestern B.C., said two conservation officers were in the area.

Moore also questioned a statement by Jim Chabot, minister of lands, parks and housing, that hunting as necessary to control inbreeding of wildlife.

Woman shot to death

OSOYOOS (CP) — A 21-year-old London, Ont. woman was shot to death Thursday in what RCMP said was an apparent murder-suicide attempt.

Police identified the dead woman as Susan Miller.

Ronald Clifford Feuerstein, 23, of Osoyoos, was listed in stable condition in hospital.

Doukhobor's hearing delayed

NELSON (CP) — A preliminary hearing for a Doukhobor woman charged with arson has been delayed because the woman has been fasting and was too weak to appear in court in this southeastern B.C. community.

Mary Braun, 59, of Gilpin, was charged following a fire in a washroom at the Grand Forks courthouse last month. She was to appear in court Wednesday.

Authorities said Braun, along with two other women, have been fasting for the past 25 days.

Doctor appeals finding

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver doctor who was criticized by a coroner's jury has petitioned B.C. Supreme Court to quash the findings of the inquest.

The petition was filed on behalf of Dr. Kenneth Roy MacKenzie in connection with the inquest into the death of Robert Wilfred Landry held at Vancouver Nov. 19 to 23 last year.

Landry, 34, a Langley pipefitter, died of a stroke in the Vancouver General Hospital psychiatric ward Sept. 17 after doctors diagnosed his condition as a personality disorder.

The coroner's jury recommended the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons review Dr. MacKenzie's performance and found he "assessed and treated Landry in a careless fashion".

Administrative Assistant

The Joint Board of Teacher Education requires an experienced administrative assistant/executive secretary in Victoria.
Suitable applicants should possess superior secretarial skills, demonstrate initiative and the ability to plan and organize. Several years university studies desirable. Previous experience in the B.C. education system would be an asset.

SUBMIT RESUME BEFORE AUGUST 27
To the Chairman, Room 207-26 Bastion Square, Victoria, B.C., V8W 1H9, Telephone 387-3530.

HOSPITALITY INDUSTRY AGAIN THE INNOCENT PARTY:

FOUR TIMES IN SIX YEARS

NO BEER: NO WORK FOR THOUSANDS!

The public has the right to know the facts behind the current brewery industry lockout.

And how it affects the hospitality industry, which employs 65,000 persons and has an annual payroll of $700 million.

The situation is critical. Hotel, pub and restaurant operators will soon be forced out of business. Their employees, union employees, licensed premises workers and allied industry workers will soon be out of work.

Ours is a $4 billion industry, the third largest in British Columbia.

An industry so vital to the welfare of this province is being crippled by an immoral brewery/labour dispute that has dragged on for six weeks.

What is the solution?

A resumption of the supply of beer.

It is the responsibility of the Provincial Ministry of Labour, and in particular Labour Minister Jack Heinrich, to get the parties together and put an end to a dispute that is costing the B.C. economy millions of dollars a week and untold thousands their jobs.

Should one union and three eastern-controlled breweries be allowed by the government to affect the livelihood of 65,000 British Columbians?

We say NO. And our employees say NO.

Fifty per cent of every dollar earned by hotels and pubs in this province comes through beer sales.

Without a steady supply of product, those in our industry face the decision of laying off staff or shutting down their premises.

Thousands of our workers have already been laid off.

Without government intervention in this dispute, we cannot survive.

We need action. NOW.

Mr. Labour Minister, it's your move!

A coalition of licensed operators in the Province of British Columbia.

A golf story about the wise and confident

Times News Services

Eric Kaufmanis had the confidence of youth and Nick Weslock the elderly wisdom in the mental attack they made on Halifax' treacherous Ashburn course at the Canadian men's amateur golf championship Thursday.

Kaufmanis, a 19-year-old scholar at the University of Indiana who is aiming at a law degree, ended any hangups he had about the 6,826-yard layout that has left many a veteran demoralized by its greens.

"I guess it's tough because I didn't think the scores would be this high," the Ottawa native said after his round of 74 — three over par — which left him at 145 and a one-stroke lead in the championship heading into the third round today of the 72-hole test. "We have a pretty tough course at Indiana so it didn't really concern me."

Kaufmanis was one stroke ahead of Greg Olson of Aylmer, Que., whose 73 Thursday helped lift Quebec to its first Willingdon Cup team championship in 43 years.

The Cup was determined on the first 36 holes of the tournament and Quebec, with a five-stroke lead heading into play Thursday, finished with a total of 440 strokes, four fewer than defending champion British Columbia.

Weslock, the 61-year-old who limps around the course with a plastic joint on one hip to keep him moving, discovered one way to beat the fast and grainy greens.

"I kind of redeemed myself for yesterday," said Weslock of his round of 71 that put him right back in the title hunt for the championship he has won four times. "But I spent a lot of time on the putting greens after yesterday's round (78) and made some technical changes."

Meanwhile, in the Canadian women's tournament at London, Ont., Edwina Kennedy of Australia went after the jugular while Barbara Bunkowsky tried to play it safe.

The lesson was brought home to Bunkowsky of Campbellville, Ont., that safe golf is poor golf as she pussyfooted her way to a 78 and a 152 total.

Kennedy, attacking the course all the way around, carded her second consecutive two-under-par 72 for a 144 total and a five-shot lead.

Kennedy holds her five-shot bulge over teammate Louise Briers, who carded a 73 for a 149.

The interprovincial team championship was a cakewalk for Ontario as Bunkowsky, Judy Ellis of Waterloo, Marlene Streit of Stouffville and Karen Mundinger of Toronto combined for a 461 total — 18 shots better than Quebec. British Columbia, the 1979 champ, finished third.

In Akron, Ohio, Tom Watson, attempting to clinch some important seasonal championships, mastered the mud and muggy heat of Firestone with a five-under-par 65 and took a two-stroke lead in the first round of the $400,000 World Series event.

Watson, winner of the British Open and five U.S. titles this year, can clinch a fourth consecutive player-of-the-year and leading money-winning title with a victory in this event that offers the biggest prize in the game, $100,000, and can take a big step toward another Vardon Trophy.

Playing in the final threesome with the two giant talents who are challenging him — Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino — Watson left them well behind. Nicklaus, winner of the U.S. Open and the PGA, shot a 68. Trevino had a 69.

And in Denver, women's tour newcomer Gail Hirata fired the best competitive round of her brief pro career, a four-under-par 68, to share the first-round lead with veterans Pat Bradley and Mary Dwyer in the $150,000 Denver LPGA stop.

Salmonbellies tie series

NEW WESTMINSTER — Victoria Shamrocks suffered a second-period letdown Thursday and because of it the Western Lacrosse Association final with New Westminster Salmbonellies is all square.

The Salmonbellies outscored the Shamrocks 7-1 in the second period and went on to post a 13-9 triumph at Queens Park Arena.

The third game of the best-of-seven final will be played Saturday at Victoria Memorial Arena, the fourth game is Monday in New Westminster and the fifth game Wednesday at Memorial Arena.

"We played well in the first period and outscored them 4-1 in the third but gave it to them in the second period" Shamrock general manager Ralph Baker said.

"They (Shamrocks) were letting their men get a step on them. They were breaking in all alone for shots." he added. "We'll have to pick up our defence for Saturday."

Brian Tasker and Gilles Bezeau scored three goals each for New Westminster, which led 5-4 after one period. Dave Durante and Mark Tuura scored twice each and Len Cimminelli, Bob Tasker and Cory Carlyle counted singles.

Rick Baker and Tarey Pollock had two goals and two assists each for Victoria, Kevin Alexander had two goals and one assist and Norm Baker, Larry Bell and Chris Hall scored once each.

A bench-clearing brawl at the end of the game prompted league commissioner Wally Donaldson to threatened the teams with fines and suspensions if similar outbreaks continue for the rest of the series.

Larry Smeltzer stopped 31 shots in the Victoria goal while Rod Banister made 26 saves for New Westminster.

THROWN OUT after heated third-inning exchange with home plate umpire Fred Brocklander (left) is San Francisco Giants manager Dave Bristol (right). Bristol was complaining about lights on dark, rainy afternoon in New York Thursday. The Giants were beaten 5-1.

Tulsa blanks Caps

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Allen Woodward scored off a direct free kick after a scoreless first half and Tulsa Roughnecks went on to blank Vancouver Whitecaps 2-0 Thursday night and clinch a North American Soccer League wild-card playoff berth.

The Roughnecks will open the playoffs at home against either Seattle Sounders or New York Cosmos.

Woodward scored at 52:24 after a free kick by Jorgen Kristensen bounced off goalkeeper Bruce Grobbelaar.

Viv Busby added his first goal of the season at 76:49 with assists from Woodward and Billy Caskey.

Tulsa directed 23 shots at Grobbelaar with the Vancouver goalkeeper recording five saves. Tulsa goalkeeper Paul Turin had four saves in Vancouver's 12-shot attack.

The Roughnecks needed three points to make assure themselves of a the second National Conference wild-card berth. Tulsa ends the regular season with a 15-17 record and 139 points, while Vancouver, with 137 points and a 16-15 record, has one game left and is also assured of a playoff berth.

It was the only game scheduled Thursday night.

Another Finley bid to sell Athletics?

Times News Services

The action behind the major league baseball scene was almost as interesting as the on-field play Thursday.

First off, Charlie Finley may be selling his Oakland Athletics.

Finley, who has offered the A's for sale several times in recent years, will attend a news conference Saturday at the headquarters of a man interested in buying the baseball team. The news conference has been scheduled at the Kaiser Centre in downtown Oakland.

The subject was not disclosed, but an aide to AL president Lee MacPhail said in New York that a major announcement would be made.

Cornell Maier, chairman of Kaiser Aluminum, said early this season that he had talked several times with Finley, who lives in Chicago, about the possibility of buying the A's.

And in Chicago, the board of directors of the White Sox met three hours to consider bids for possible sale of their franchise but ended the meeting without reaching a decision.

The 12-member board was to meet again today.

Club president Bill Veeck refused to comment on what transpired at Thursday's meeting.

Pittsburgh Pirates, struggling to protect their lead atop the National League's East Division, have placed Willie Stargell on the 15-day disabled list with a knee injury.

Houston Astros belted the Pirates 12-5 but the big move in the tight East scramble was made by Philadelphia Phillies. The charging Phils scored a 17-inning, 9-8 victory over San Diego Padres and moved into second, a half game ahead of the slumping Montreal Expos.

Expos were stung, 5-4, by Los Angeles Dodgers in an extra inning.

Meanwhile, in the AL, Baltimore Orioles continued to close on New York Yankees in the East. Baltimore clubbed California Angels 7-1 and moved to within 1½ games of the Yanks when Seattle Mariners upset New York 6-4 in the Kingdome.

No-hitter by Otto keeps Blues rolling

Mike Otto pitched a no-hitter Thursday as Victoria Blues continued their pennant drive by sweeping a Northwest Baseball League doubleheader from Grays Harbor Loggers.

The Blues squeaked out a 5-4 win in the opener and then followed Otto's no-hit performance to a 3-0 victory in the second game played before an appreciative crowd of about 400 at Royal Athletic Park.

The sweep boosted the Blues' record to 38-24 and moves them within 1½ games of first-place Bellingham Mariners, who blanked visiting Salem Sentaors 1-0, in the Northern Division. Bellingham is 40-23

The Blues played as the visiting team Thursday because the games were makeups of rainouts at Grays Harbor, but they'll be home team tonight when they host the Loggers for another doubleheader starting at 6.

Otto, 3-1, struck out seven as he tamed the Logger bats, but Grays Harbor managed to put four men on base via walks. Otto picked one of them off, boosting his record to four pickoffs in his last two games.

He got all the support he needed in the first inning when Paul Stevens walked and, with one out, manager Jim Gattis singled. Stevens was thrown out trying to score but Gattis went to second and scored when Paul Kirsch reached base on a throwing error.

The Blues were outhit 9-5 in the opener but they scored four runs in the third inning on a walk to Murphy, a single by Lazondo Washington, sacrifices by Stevens and Barry Moss, a double by Gattis and singles by Kirsch and Joe Lorenz.

Barlow upsets champion

NEW YORK (CP) — Canada was eliminated Thursday from the International Young Masters tennis championship, dropping a 5-1 decision to top-seeded Australia in semifinal action.

Australia now will face the second-seeded United States, a 5-1 winner Wednesday over Brazil, for the championship today.

The lone victory for Canada, seeded third, came as somewhat of a surprise when Wendy Barlow of Victoria whipped Debbie Freeman, the Wimbledon junior women's champion, 6-1, 6-2. Freeman double-faulted 19 times and there were 11 service breaks in the 15 games.

But the Australians won the other three singles matches and then clinched the decision in the men's doubles when John Fitzgerald and Greg Whitecross beat Bill Cowan of Toronto and Stephane Bonneau of Quebec City, 6-4, 6-4.

Nina Bland of Victoria lost 7-5, 6-0 to Sue Leo, who later teamed with Freeman to defeat the Victoria doubles pair 7-6, 6-4.

Sheltered waters close to Victoria are providing some of the choicest salmon fishing around Vancouver Island.

During the past few days, action has turned hot in Finlayson Arm and the middle part of Saanich Inlet.

Limit catches of chinooks to nine pounds and a few coho in the same size range have been landed off Goldstream Island, Chesterfield Rock and in Misery Bay using about 100 feet of line with a planer and strip, minnows and Squirts. The odd larger chinook to 32 pounds has provided extra excitement.

Buzz-Bombers have connected with fair success off the Island and the White Lady.

A similar boost to fishing was noted off Bamberton and in Coles Bay where a fifty-fifty mixture of chinooks to 15 pounds and coho to 7½ have been caught by trollers using all-chrome Krippled K lures, hootchies and strip at about the 75-foot level on a downrigger.

Driftfishermen have been catching some of the Cowichan River chinooks that tip the scales to 24 pounds off Willis, Sheppard and McCurdy points.

Action has picked up a little off Deep Cove, where fishermen are boating coho to five pounds in Satellite Channel and off Wain Rock using Krippled Ks at the 50-foot depth.

"Nothing too exciting" was the word from Sidney, with only a few smallish chinooks coming in from the vicinity of Sidney Spit and Coal Island and the odd coho to six pounds showing off Point Fairfax. Strip and hootchies have worked best when trolled close to the bottom.

Driftfishing has dropped right off at Oak Bay but trollers working the Flats with strip are still managing to land chinooks up to the 32-pounder taken by K.A. Moeskau on Tuesday afternoon along with a few coho to five pounds.

Most catches were made close to the bottom and there are some indications the catch might start to pick up off Trial Island.

Action has slowed down a little at Pedder Bay with coho and a few chinooks, both to eight pounds, showing off the kelp bed. Driftfishing with Buzz-Bombs has been most productive.

Anchovies and strip are pulling in limit catches of a fifty-fifty blend of chinooks to 26 pounds and coho to six in various spots around Becher Bay. Most success has been noted in the top 60 feet of water.

Albert Brohman boated the best out of an improving return at Sooke with three nice chinooks weighing 25, 18 and 13 pounds Thursday morning after landing a 22:10-pounder Wednesday. All were landed near Secretary Island with a Spring King and minnow.

Most of the catch, however, is made up of coho to 7½ pounds.

Port Renfrew fishermen have to contend with slightly slower catches but a few chinooks in the 30-pound range are still being caught on Krippled K lures.

Further up-Island, Duncan-area waters have slowed right down except for a few chinooks to 20 pounds off Bold Bluff.

Coho to five pounds and a few jacks are showing off Nanaimo around the Brickyard and Five Fingers but action has been spotty and confined mainly to deep gear.

Chinooks to 35 pounds were sparking some fantastic action for driftfishermen off Bamfield and for trollers using plugs at the 30 to 40-foot depth around Lone Tree Point. Unfortunately, gillnetters started fishing in Alberni Inlet on Wednesday and were scheduled to continue fishing through today. The beating the fish stocks take might have an affect on the sports return this weekend.

Coho to eight pounds are nailing purple or blue-colored bucktails off Bates Beach and around the south end of Hornby Island between 6 and 8 a.m. each day.

Numerous coho to 10 pounds, some starting to develop a hooked nose, and a few chinooks to 40 pounds are providing a lively return at Campbell River in the vicinity of Whiskey Point, Cape Mudge, Butler Point, the Red Can, Shelter Point and Menzies Bay.

Strip, live herring, cut-plug herring and plugs have worked best.

NIBBLES: Victoria City Police Athletic Association is holding a salmon derby from dawn to dusk Saturday and from dawn to 2 p.m. Sunday.

The derby is divided into two zones. Zone A includes Sooke through Oak Bay waters while Zone B takes in James Island through Galliano Island as well as Sidney, Cowichan Bay and Saanich Inlet.

Zone A weigh-ins will be at Cheanuh Marina, James Bay Anglers' Association and Oak Bay Marina. Rhodes' Sports Fishing Services, Van Isle Marina and Anchor Marina at Cowichan Bay will serve as weigh-in posts for Zone B.

Tickets are $10 each and may be picked up at either Gordon's or Robinson's sporting goods stores.

Serious injuries avoided in pileup

A first-race pileup and reports that some new stock would be available for the final two weeks of the card highlighted Thursday activity at Sandown Raceway.

Witnesses said that pole-sitter Sea Farenheit, driven by Marko Vukelich, went down after being clipped by Rhythm C, with Miles Armstrong at the reins, and that Sheraton N, driven by Joe Hudon, crashed into the fallen outfit.

Rhythm C went on to win but was disqualified from the race by track officials.

Vukelich was treated and released from Saanich Peninsula Hospital in Sidney while Hudon finished out the program and picked up two wins, a place and a show.

There was no official report on the condition of the horses but they were believed to have suffered only bumps and bruises.

Meanwhile, part of a shipment of stock purchased at Meadowlands, New Jersey has arrived and more is on the way, some destined for the track and some to breeding farms on the Island or on the B.C. mainland.

Driver Keith Quinlan and breeder G. Longphee of Sidney are in charge of the shipment which includes six brood mares some in foal, a stud — Plaza Bret — a seven-year-old sired by Bret Hanover, and three mares, a colt and a five-year-old gelding which are expected to race here.

The mares are Fashion Filly, a four-year-old which has raced a mile in 1:58 this year; H.H. Leslie, a six-year-old with career earnings of more than $100,000 and a half-mile time of 2:01; and Ellies Girl, a four-year-old, purchased for Ernie Arsenault, with a best of 2.01.

Keislers Poppy is the colt (2.03) and Cash Power, the gelding (1:59).

All are expected to race here after recovering from the long trip.

Hudon is also bringing back Baron Nuff which raced here twice in July against the fastest fields ever assembled at Sandown and finished third both times.

It's also been reported that Keith Linton is bringing in a string of horses from the Calgary meet.

(Thursday results and Saturday's entries are on page 18).

City pair in fours

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Victoria youths, Laird Dunlop and Dale Willard, scored quarter-final wins Thursday in the Canadian junior tennis championships.

And Martin Wostenholme and Glenn Michibata continued their relentless march to an expected meeting in the under-18 finals.

Wostenholme, the No. 1 seed from Ottawa, used his superior quickness to dispose of eighth-seeded Ric Bengston of West Vancouver 6-3, 6-3.

Michibata, the second seed from Toronto, was even more efficent as beat sixth-seeded John Wilder of Willowdale, Ont., 6-1, 6-1.

Wostenholme, 17, meets fourth-seeded Laird Dunlop of Victoria in one semi-final today while Michibata goes against the No. 3 seed, Doug Burke of Toronto. The final is Saturday.

Burke got past Michel Hurtubise of Ottawa 6-2, 6-2 and Dunlop disposed of Mitch Schachter of Toronto 6-2, 6-3.

In the men's under-16, Willard defeated the No. 2 seed, Dowie Cosiun of Calgary 6-4, 6-2 as the top three seeds were upset, leaving fourth-seeded Martin Laurendeau of Ottawa as the lone remaining seed in the semi-finals. Top-ranked Robbie Horwood of Thornhill, Ont., was beaten 6-0, 7-5 by his doubles partner, sixth-seeded Paul Beck of Toronto, and third-seeded Andre Lambert of Montreal lost to Chris Pridham of Toronto 3-6, 6-1 7-5. Laurendeau advanced by defeating Hatom Medadi of Toronto 6-1, 6-1.

Beck meets Laurendeau in one semi-final today and Pridham goes against Willard in the other.

Dorsett in fold

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas Cowboys running back Tony Dorsett accepted a multi-year extension of his contract Thursday — dispelling fears that the star player would leave the National Football League club.

Cowboys' spokesman Greg Aiello said Dorsett had signed the amended contract, but he declined to comment on specifics of the agreement.

The Heisman Trophy winner had sought what he termed a "lifetime contract" with a higher base salary on the remaining two years of his original contract, plus a five-year extension at a salary competitive with the NFL's elite.

Nostalgia and the classics

Around our shores

It's a safe bet that thousands of people — boaters and landlubbers alike — will be milling around the Inner Harbor next weekend to eyeball the nostalgic craft that will be there for the third annual Classic Boat Festival.

Among the earliest-built entries that will take part in the three-day event on the Labor Day weekend will be the 35-foot Hereshoff sloop Dorothy. Lovingly restored by Angus and Sandy Matthews, she was built in 1897 for Victoria lawyer W.H. Langley for $1,200.

Langley was commodore of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club from 1904 to 1906 when the cluhouse was located at the foot of Wharf Street.

Bob and Diana Hall's 32-foot sloop West Wind is an old-timer that was very active in international regattas in the 1930s when she was owned by Tom and Roy Denny. She was built as a yawl in 1930 by J.T. Taylor of Vancouver, her first owner being Martin Ellis, who was then headmaster of Brentwood College.

Blanchards, Seattle's pioneer boatbuilding yard, will be well represented with Norman Blanchard, son of the founder, serving as a judge at this year's festival.

Among the American entries built by Blanchards, will be Miles McCoy's 47-year-old Cape Cod cat boat Sharon L, Greg Gilbert's Mer-Na, the last of 25 Dreamboat designs built in the 1920s, and another Dreamboat, Herb Cleaver's Marion II.

This year's honorary commodore will be well-known local boat designer Frank Fredette, who as a young man fished for cod and sailed on sealing vessels out of Victoria that made the Bering Sea their hunting ground.

Jim Russell of the Victoria Real Estate Board, which sponsors the event, says entries will be limited to 200 boats. If you have a classic boat you'd like to enter, contact him as soon as possible. There was a field of 53 in 1978 which increased to well over 150 the following year.

One of the festival's highlights will be the sail-past that takes place off the Ogden Point breakwater at 11 a.m. on the Sunday. The navy's ketch HMCS Oriole will take the salute.

One of three major racing events which will also take place on the Labor Day weekend will be sailed in local waters. Along with the traditional Maple Bay Regatta and P.I.T.CH in Bellingham there will be the third annual Victoria Catalina 27 regatta. This will be sailed at Cadboro Bay with the RVYC and the Victoria Catalina 27 Fleet sharing the host's role.

This regatta is now designated as the Canadian National Catalina 27 Championship and Gerry Porter says as many as 30 boats are expected to compete. The regatta will start at 10 a.m. on the Saturday. The schedule calls for three races on the Saturday and another two on the Sunday. There will be one throw-out.

Cooper Enterprises Ltd. of Port Coquitlam, the Canadian manufacturer of Catalina 27s has donated a handsome perpetual trophy as well as four keeper trophies. The class is rapidly gaining popularity among cruiser-racers and more than 5,600 have been built in North America.

All standard Catalina 27s are eligible to compete in the coming regatta and there will be a separate non-spinnaker series for those who do more cruising than racing. For the first time, too, this year, a five-race non-spinnaker series has been arranged for Catalina 30s.

Any Catalina owners who are interested in taking part can give Gerry a ring at 592-3484 for further information.

Cattle Point and Willows beach will be good vantage points for amateur photographers and other spectators.

Members of the Victoria Canoe and Kayak Club will be in the Duncan area on Sunday for a sortie on Quamichan Lake. They will meet at the Helmcken Road-Highway parking lot at 10:30 a.m. Turning right at the light near the Dairy Queen in Duncan, they will keep going until they reach the Kinsmens Park at the south end of the lake.

If it's too windy on the lake, the trip could include a visit to the Forest Museum. Frank Johnson is in charge of this excursion and can be reached at 479-5729.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

Welders grab softball crown

Bemister's Welding captured the Victoria-Saanich Women's Softball League playoff championship Thursday while Knowles Realty took a stranglehold on the Heywood Men's League final.

Marilyn Bolton pitched a three-hitter and Marg Young homered and singled as Bemister's downed Butler Brothers 7-2 to take the best-of-three series at Hycinth Park, 2-1.

Sue Ondre also had two hits for the winners.

At Heywood Park, Knowles Realty took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five final by blanking Mears Realty 2-0.

Brian Scotney pitched a two-hitter for the win and Dale Ewasiuk hit his second home run in as many games.

Scotney struck out six, walked three and allowed only a second-inning single by Dave Green and a third-inning single by Bruce Thomson.

The series resumes with a doubleheader starting at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Meanwhile, the Stuffy McGinnis Men's League semi-final game between Victoria Athletics and Tally-Ho Inn was called after seven innings with the teams locked in a scoreless draw.

The game will be resumed at 5:45 p.m. Sunday at Central Park.

Rawlings defeated Sooke 9-0 to capture the Lower Island intermediate B women's league championship.

Bowlers sought

Singles, couples or groups looking for a mixed tenpin league need look no further.

There are openings for the Sunday 9 p.m. league at Mayfair Lanes and anyone interested in joining is invited to attend a meeting at Mayfair 7 p.m. this Sunday. For more information call the lanes at 386-3461.

Touch football tourney slated

The playing fields of the Juan de Fuca Recreation Centre will provide the turf for the Labatts-Juan de Fuca touch football tournament this weekend.

Play runs from 9:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Saturday, resumes at 11 a.m. Sunday with the final scheduled for 2 p.m.

Bergman retires

DETROIT (AP) — Thommie Bergman, veteran Detroit Red Wings defenceman and one of the first Swedes to play in the National Hockey League, has retired after a string of injuries.

Partner deals and bids One Club. What would you respond with each of the following five hands?

2.♠AJ532 ♡KQ987 ◇AQ4 ♣—
3.♠KQ6 ♡AJ9 ◇KQ7 ♣Q953
4.♠AKQJ9 ♡— ◇J852 ♣A763
5.♠QJ92 ♡Q985 ◇J ♣Q854

1. One heart. It is tempting to bid two notrump (forcing), but this would violate a cardinal principle, namely, that the first step in constructive bidding is to explore the possibility of a major suit fit.

It is certainly possible for partner to have four hearts and find it inconvenient to bid them over two notrump, and you might never locate the heart fit. Responding with one heart does not preclude the possibility of winding up in notrump, but responding with two notrump may forever lose the chance of finding a 4-4 heart fit.

2. One spade. To respond one spade, instead of two, may seem to be an underbid, but that is the right response opposite a club bid. Had partner opened one diamond instead of one club, a jump-shift to two spades would be entirely in order. The hand is worth much more, for both game and slam purposes, when partner bids a diamond.

3. Three notrump. This shows 16 or 17 points, notrump distribution (nearly always 4-3-3-3), and strength in the three unbid suits. Three notrump is by no means a signoff bid; on the contrary, it suggests a slam if partner has significantly more than a minimum opening bid.

4. Two spades. With a self-sufficient suit and a fit in partner's clubs, it is best to alert partner at once to the possibility of a slam by jump-shifting to two spades — even though there are only 15 high-card points. Over an opening heart bid you would respond only one spade, following the general principle of discounting your values when a misfit exists and adding to your values when a fit is known to exist.

5. One heart. You have the right values for a raise to two clubs — showing 6 to 9 points and at least four clubs — but it is nevertheless best to inaugurate the search for a major suit fit.

You bid hearts, rather than spades, in order to achieve the maximum chance of finding a 4-4 major fit. If you were to respond one spade, you might never find the heart fit if it existed. By naming hearts first, you leave room for partner to discover either major suit fit in the one level.

Today we have a Magic Square. That's a sequence of consecutive positive numbers arranged in solid square formation so that each column, each line and each diagonal will add up to the same magic total.

The magic total happens to be just one less than seven times the smallest number in our sequence.

What must the sequence be?

Timber overcutting bill record $420,444

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. forest ministry has handed North Central Plywood Ltd. at Prince George a $420,444 bill for overcutting public timber rights in 1979.

Ministry officials say it's the highest penalty of its type ever levied in the province.

North Central Plywood, a subsidiary of Northwood Pulp and Timber Ltd., was assessed the penalty after the company cut 69,152 cubic metres of wood more than it should have in 1979.

The overcut represents 62 per cent more than the 113,280 cubic metres the company had rights to cut in the Takla public sustained yield unit, about 300 kilometres north of Prince George.

Leverne Merkel, a timber officer with the forest ministry at Prince George, said Thursday the penalty represents twice the normal stumpage rates charged in 1979.

"It's the largest penalty I've seen assessed in the Prince George or any other region, but stumpage values were also very high in 1979."

Merkel said Northwood, which bought North Central after the overcutting, is disputing the penalty on the basis that verbal permission was given for the extra logging. But he said there is nothing written to indicate such permission was granted.

Merkel said there are a few cases each year of overcutting on public timber lands, including a still-disputed case involving Lakeland Mills Ltd.

Lakeland is disputing an additional $111,000 bill for overcutting its timber rights in 1978, claiming exceptional circumstances forced an overcut of about 10,000 cubic metres.

Forest ministry officials in Vancouver said the problem in the past has been undercutting annual allowable cutting quotas rather than overcutting.

Scots gawking at Victoria carver

EDINBURGH (CP) — This is a city of stone monuments but Richard Hunt, a Kwakiutl Indian from Victoria, is making one of wood.

An estimated 2,000 persons a day have stopped in and seen Hunt at work carving his five-metre-long red cedar totem pole on the ground floor of the newly opened city art centre in the last week. That's not counting the many who just peek in through the picture windows.

It's going to stand in a downtown park once the 34th Edinburgh International Festival is over in two weeks. It will be a gift from the city of Vancouver to the city of Edinburgh.

It's going to be a super pole said Hunt, 29, chief carver at B.C.'s Provincial Museum in Victoria for the last eight years. Everything is going right.

The totem depicts a raven, a sculpin and a two-headed sea serpent — all crests of the Hunt family.

Back home the erection of such a pole would probably require him to hold a potlatch — one of those ancestral ritual parties in which the host justifies his right to display the crest. The guests acknowledge the claim by accepting gifts from the host.

If there's any potlatch here, it will be a limited affair. "We'll probably all go to a bar and I'll buy the drinks," Hunt said.

He began work on the pole more than two months ago in Canada. He has two weeks to go.

That's two more weeks of answering the same questions he has been answering over and over. What kind of wood is it? How long does it take?

Answers: He uses red cedar because there's plenty of it, it's easy to carve and it doesn't rot as fast as other woods. It takes three months to carve.

As patient at answering as he is at carving, Hunt said he doesn't mind the questions. It helps to dispel certain stereotyped ideas some may have about Indians.

Not all of the 2,000 persons trooping daily past Hunt's handiwork go up to the exhibition of West Coast Indian art on the two floors above, said Peter MacNair, Hunt's boss and curator of ethnology at the provincial museum.

Only about 400 or 500 a day file up to the exhibition rooms to see the legacy, a collection of traditional and contemporary artifacts making up the latest edition of a display that first was shown in B.C. in 1971.

MacNair said that only about 20 persons attend each of his talks on Indian art.

B.C.'s salmon industry in deep, deep trouble

By Margot Sinclair

VANCOUVER (CP) — The west coast salmon, once a cheap, plentiful staple in Canadian kitchens, is in trouble.

Poor catches this year have led everyone involved in the $1-billion salmon industry — British Columbia's fourth largest — to the conclusion that stocks of the popular fish are critically low.

Ten years ago the annual commercial catch averaged 280 million pounds of salmon. That figure has fallen to about 140 million pounds and this year the most optimistic estimate is 100 million pounds.

While all agree that there are problems with the fishery, opinions vary on the causes. Among the suggestions are:

— Overfishing by 5,000 licensed commercial fishing vessels and the almost-unregulated sports fishery.

— Deterioration of the salmon's environment, including spawning channels, because of pollution, logging and hydroelectric development.

— Problems in properly managing and restocking the fishery.

— Lack of a reciprocal fishing agreement between Canada and the United States which would provide a co-ordinated management policy and fairly divide catch quotas.

Jerry Spitz of the Fisheries Association of B.C. blames environmental damage as the No. 1 factor behind the decline of the fishery.

Loss of breeding waters is rarely caused by a single industrial project or environmental disaster, Spitz said. Instead, the loss is gradual as small amounts of pollution enter rivers and streams over a period of time.

"We're losing maybe a few hundred fish every day," Spitz said.

"It's not a big thing, but in total it's decimating our rivers."

Spitz points to a record run of 58 million red salmon this year in Alaska's Bristol Bay. The reason is the area's isolation, he says. Fewer people means less pollution — and more fish.

"We are going to develop this province industrially, but it should be done, not at the expense of our environment, but with special consideration given to protecting and maintaining it."

Spitz thinks governments should be investing more money in the fishery and environmental research.

The federal fisheries department spends about $3 million a year to run salmon hatcheries and management programs in the Pacific region.

There's an insatiable demand for money in fisheries, said John Davis, associate director of the resource services branch and head of the salmon division in Vancouver. There's also a growing awareness that more must be spent to save the resource.

Davis agrees environmental damage is a problem, but blames overfishing as the chief reason for salmon decline.

"We've got a very large, mobile, effective fishing fleet out there and that goes along with modern technology," he said. "As a result, the effectiveness of that fleet can certainly make a dent in major stocks of salmon."

The solution is thorough research into salmon habits, said Davis. Once enough information is collected, officials can try to achieve a more equitable distribution of fishing boats.

Policies must be designed to ensure that enough salmon evade fishermen's nets to spawn new generations for future fishermen.

Regulations are needed to control mixed-stock waters.

Currently, some types of salmon in dangerous decline are mixed with abundant species and fish born in a hatchery. Each drop of the net means more of the endangered varieties are lost.

Another problem is that no one knows how many salmon are being caught by the thousands of sports fishermen, said John Rivard of the Native Brotherhood of B.C.

"If they all use the salmon sports fisheries at any given time, that number of people would decimate the stocks."

The Native Brotherhood is holding talks with Ottawa about implementing its own hatchery project under federal programs for community economic development.

The government's current hatchery program, says Spitz, is a good investment. For every dollar invested, $13 worth of fish return to B.C. waters.

But hatcheries aren't the total solution to the problem. The technology isn't available to replace all the natural stock in the province even if the money were available.

The state of the salmon fishery also has aggravated rivalries between Canadian and U.S. fishermen over how to fairly divide the catch from boundary waters.

For example, sockeye and pink salmon runs in the Fraser River are managed jointly by Canada and the U.S. through the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission.

Recently, two Canadian members threatened to resign because of what they said was the federal government's lack of action in defending this country's share of the quotas.

The commission is hamstrung by the absence of a new salmon treaty between the two countries, says John Roos, assistant director.

Until then, neither country is willing to undertake new hatchery or management programs for fear that the other country's fishermen will net the benefits.

Werner Gruener, 32, acquitted two years ago in the murder of Emanuel Jaques, a 12-year-old shoeshine boy, has been charged with creating a common nuisance at the Canadian National Exhibition. Police said they arrested a man this week who was blowing fire into the air through a hose apparatus containing flammable liquid. Police said the man apparently directed the flames toward a crowd of onlookers and told them he was baptizing them. No one was injured in the incident.

Film actors have the Oscars. Musicians have the Grammys. Now comics will be able to compete for a Danny. An award for outstanding comedy performers is being established in the name of Danny Kaye at the Deauville festival of American film in France. Kaye will be a guest of honor at the sixth annual festival in September, and will receive a statuette.

Invitations to Toronto Maple Leafs's training camp have been sent out, but the National Hockey League club won't say whether one was sent to star centre Darryl Sittler. Leafs owner Harold Ballard is adamant that Sittler will never again wear the blue and white Toronto uniform. "I honestly don't know if we have invited him, but I think I could stop him from coming," said Ballard. In his feud with the Sittler — highest scorer in Leafs history — Ballard has said if he can't trade the popular hockey player, he will pay him to sit in the stands.

Actor James Stewart's health has improved enough that he may be able to go home soon. The Academy award-winning actor has been on a special coronary care list at a Santa Monica, Calif., hospital since last Friday for an irregular pulse. The bashful actor, 72, has made about 100 movies in his 45 years in Hollywood. Always a movie hero, he was a hero in real life. A veteran of 20 combat flying missions in the Second World War, Stewart received the Distinguished Flying Cross and was made a brigadier-general in the U.S. Air Force Reserve.

It's officially over between Anita Bryant and husband Bob Green, and the mother of the former anti-gay crusader says her daughter isn't a likely candidate for another stab at matrimony. Bryant says she'll live with her four children in Tulsa, Okla. Her mother, Lenore Cate, reports: "Right now she's off of men and I don't blame her."

Dear Abby:

We constantly hear about how rotten the youth of today are, so I'm writing to tell you of a recent experience with the young.

I have a lovely seashore home, which I permitted my grandson and five of his boyfriends to use for a week in celebration of their high school graduation.

When I walked into the house after their departure, this is what I found: The rugs had been vacuumed, the furniture dusted, the cushions of two new armchairs were covered with bath towels to avoid soiling, the kitchen and bathrooms were scrubbed and spotless, all the beds were made with fresh linens, and they had even laundered and put away all the sheets, pillowcases and towels they had used!

Even my plants were watered! The refrigerator was emptied and clean, and in it was a box of candy for me! On the coffee table was a note of thanks, signed by each one, plus a $10 bill to cover the phone calls they had made.

Forgive my bragging, but I just had to share this with somebody.

Proud Granny

Dear Granny:

Don't apologize. You have plenty to crow about. (P.S. Sounds like the boys may have had a little help from some chicks.)

Dear Abby:

Here's the deal. Both my boyfriend and I are legal age. Last February we took out a marriage license, but we never did get married because there were a lot of things we wanted to straighten out first. He had debts. I had debts. He wasn't ready to tell his parents yet, and stuff like that. Anyway, to save expenses we are now living together.

I heard that if you live with a guy long enough, you don't have to get married! Just living together will give you a common-law status. Is this true? How long do you have to live together before it's common-law? I want things nice and legal.

Doesn't a marriage license prove that we are serious about getting married and not just fooling around? I mean, isn't this setup just as good as being married?

Me and Him

Dear Me:

A "license" to marry is just that and nothing more. Common-law marriages are recognized in some states, but not in others. If you want things "nice and legal," ask a lawyer and quit guessing.

Dear Abby:

Please tell Pittsburgh, who has been married for 50 years, not to be upset when her husband says "Thank you" after a love session. After 50 years, he may be addressing his thanks to the good Lord — not to her!

Solitude — it's good for you

By DAVA SOBEL
New York Times

NEW YORK — Solitude, whether it's the pain of loneliness or the pleasure of autonomy, plays an important role in adolescent life, frequently enabling teenagers to be more comfortable in dealing with others, according to new research at the University of Chicago.

Assessing the quantity and quality of private time among 75 student volunteers from high schools in Chicago, psychologists Reed Larson and Mihaly Csikszentmihalyi found that the youngsters spent more than a quarter of their waking hours by themselves, although the students reported being in better spirits when with others. Surprisingly, the amount of solitude was not affected by whether a teenager had his or her own room, a girlfriend or boyfriend, or a team position in an organized sport. Only the responsibility of a job could alter the total time these adolescents spent alone.

During solitude the adolescents enjoyed heightened attention spans and powers of concentration. By their own assessment, they were better able to concentrate on their hobbies or homework when alone. They also noted that they were less self-conscious at these times. After being by themselves, the students said, they returned to the company of their family or friends feeling more alert, stronger, more involved and more cheerful. Those who spent the most time alone scored slightly higher on standard intelligence test.

This study, reported in the August issue of the Journal of Current Adolescent Medicine, is one of very few scientific investigations into an important area of human behavior that is poorly understood. The same researchers have also examined solitude among adults.

Larson and Csikszentmihalyi were able to test the teenagers repeatedly for one week as they went from home to school, read alone in their rooms, worked, played, visited shopping malls with companions or met for dates. Each student carried an electronic pager of the type worn by doctors on emergency call. At random times, approximately once every two hours while a student was awake, a beep from the pager would signal him to fill out a form in a small booklet, also portable, that asked: What are you doing? Where? With whom? Do you wish you were doing something else? and other related questions.

The students also graded their moods on scales that ranged from happy to sad, alert to drowsy, cheerful to irritable, and could fill a comment space with "great thoughts, nasty cracks, cartoons, etc." The study group included approximately equal numbers of girls and boys from upper-middle and lower-middle class families in the four high school grades. They filed a total of 4,500 self-reports, but the researchers lowered the number to 2,739 by discounting much of the in-school time when solitude was scarce.

Of all the activities the students described at the beep's interruption — watching television, eating, listening to music — the only one that they preferred to do by themselves was "personal care." "Free thought" was more fun with a friend, and "public leisure" was never pursued alone by any of the participants.

"They feel most alive with others, especially their friends," Larson said in a telephone interview. "The majority preferred friends to family, particularly the boys."

The greatest amount of time alone accrued to a girl who filed more than half of her self-reports in solitude. At the other extreme, one boy noted being by himself in only 5 per cent of his reports. The average figure was 26 per cent, and most of those times (75 per cent) occurred in the students' homes. The fact that the proportion of private time remained stable over the course of the week, the researchers noted, indicated that solitude had "a relatively constant position in each student's life."

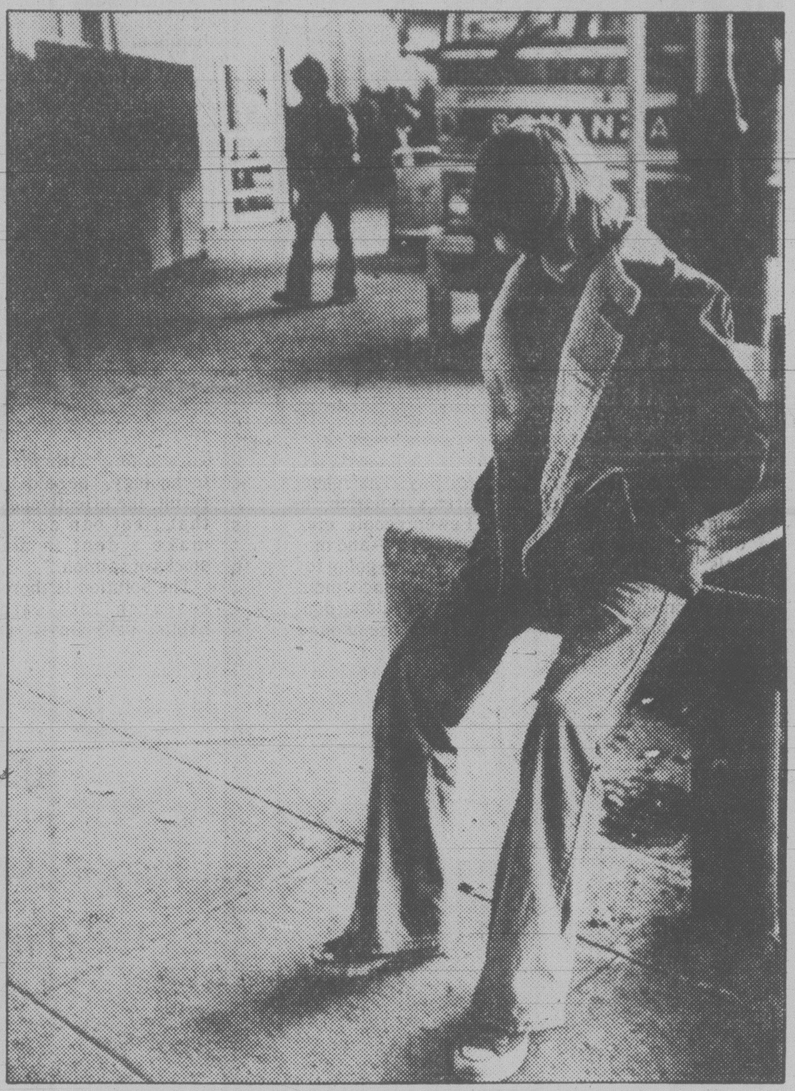
Lengthy discussions with the teenagers at the end of the experiment supported this conclusion, Larson said, and proved to him that they had chosen the amount of time they wished to spend by themselves.

Solitary students spent more time reading and more time at home. Although the more solitary life style was not related to the student's sex, socio-economic level, grade in school or creativity, as measured on a standard test, the older students appeared to make better use of their time alone. For all the students, scores on intelligence tests were slightly higher among those who spent the greatest amount of time by themselves.

A parallel study of 107 business professionals and assembly-line workers, conducted recently by the same researchers with the same technique, found that the amount of solitude in adult life seems to be an economic issue.

"Those people with more money and higher status," Larson said, "spent more time with others. And adults with the least amount of solitude reported the highest moods. I suspect, though, that this would not be the case among scholars or other more solitary professionals."

The Experience Sampling Method used in this research was developed by members of the university's Committee on Human Development with funds from the Spencer Foundation. It is less intrusive than confining subjects to a laboratory, Csikszentmihalyi said, and elicits more specific answers about moods, experiences and thoughts than could be gathered by asking people to make diary entries at the end of each day. After three weeks of wearing an electronic pager himself to test the idea, he said he found it "amazing how hard it is to lie" and "appalling how rarely I had an important thought to report."



A teenager needs to experience the joys solitude can bring

An encounter with love and marriage

MONTREAL (CP) — Sunday morning in the Montreal Forum: 4,000 women turn to their husbands, 4,000 men to their wives.

They look each other in the eye, touching and holding. No one talks.

After a good 30 seconds everyone rises, and couples embrace and sing "Hallelujah, I love you."

It was one of the euphoric high points at the fifth-anniversary congress of Renouement Conjugal, the French-speaking Roman Catholic branch of World Wide Marriage Encounter.

Couples came to the two-day celebration from the Abitibi by bus, from New Brunswick by chartered plane and from the Lower St. Lawrence River by special "love train."

Each couple had been through at least one "encounter weekend" during the last five years.

Most practiced "10-10"—taking 10 minutes a day to write a love letter to one's spouse—and attended "love circle" meetings.

The movement has grown spectacularly since the French-Canadian branch of Marriage Encounter (ME) was formed in 1975. More than 100,000 couples have been through its encounter weekends.

The tightly organized weekend sessions are programmed to encourage marriage partners to release their gut feelings—hurts, frustrations and disappointments as well as a desires, ambitions and joys—and open the door to new beginnings in troubled or lacklustre marriages. The movement claims a 98-per-cent success rate.

"Last year a couple came to a Montreal weekend bent on divorce but willing to see if ME could help them," said Father Maurice Comeau, a co-ordinator of the anniversary congress.

"After it was over they were in raptures and when the time came to make their offering for the weekend, they decided to give $700, the amount the husband had expected to pay for a divorce.

"People pay according to their feelings about the weekend and their ability," Father Comeau said. "The average gift is around $130. There is no pressure."

The Marriage Encounter movement had its beginnings in the Catholic Church in Spain in the early 1950s, as an attempt to reinforce traditional family life. It's popularity has since spread and it now operates in 37 countries.

Some 4,000 couples embrace during 'encounter weekend' at Montreal Forum.

By DR. L. L. COLEMAN

In recent months I've notice that I've had a sharp decline in memory. I'm 76 years old and I know that at my age memory changes occur. When I taught school I had a phenomenal memory. I'm trying to find out places where special studies are being done on this problem.

N.N.

Dear N.N.:

Memory disorders are not simple problems. They may result from any one of a number of conditions — some of which are relatively unimportant. Others are more complicated.

Undoubtedly, the most common cause of loss of memory is attributed to narrowing of the blood vessels to the brain due to arteriosclerosis. One of the characteristic aspects of this type of memory loss is that the patient has no trouble recalling the smallest event that may have occurred 50 years ago, yet something that occurred only a few weeks ago, a few hours ago, or even a few minutes ago, may be difficult to recall.

Such loss of memory is very distressing to the person involved, and can be upsetting to those who surround him. It sometimes becomes irritating when something that has been said only a few minutes ago must be repeated. Showing irritability rather than sympathetic understanding further adds to the distress.

Scientists all over the world are constantly at work trying to find ways to increase the blood supply to the brain in the hope that fading memory can be restored. Dr. Richard Schlessinger and his co-workers at the University of Rochester have been working on this problem.

A synthetic drug similar to a substance extracted from the periwinkle plant is being evaluated for its possible capacity to increase the memory. Because of some toxic side effects, the drug, vincamine, has not been released in the U.S.

With all the vigorous research that is going on it will not be long before memory loss due to oncoming age will be controlled.

Is there any way to remove the stretch marks on the abdomen? I lost a lot of weight after my first child was born. I've noticed it since then.

E.T.

Dear E. T.:

During pregnancy the expansion of the breasts and the abdominal wall can sometimes cause breaks in the underlying layers of the skin. Someone once said that these were the "hash marks" of a proud mother.

Plastic surgery is really the only way to handle some of these extreme cases. In most instances, surgery is not effective. Expensive hormone creams are a total waste.

Why not take the volunteer course?

volunteering

The Victoria Volunteer Bureau believes that volunteering can and should be a rewarding activity. Increasingly, people are entering the volunteer force with clear expectations of what they would like to gain from the experience.

Provided with a background knowledge, volunteers are better able to make choices about the kind of volunteer position that will best suit them, to develop effective relationships with the staff and clients with whom they work, and to assert their own needs for growth and development as volunteers.

This fall, the Volunteer Bureau and Camosun College will be sponsoring a four-session evening course entitled: Volunteering: Is It For You? The course will provide those who are volunteering and those who are interested in becoming volunteers with a background of the field.

Topics covered in the course will include an overview of volunteering, volunteer opportunities in Victoria, factors to consider when choosing a volunteer job, rights and responsibilities, staff-volunteer relationships, working in specific areas such as with children or the elderly, communication skills, and the assertive volunteer.

The course will begin September 18th and will run for four Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The cost of the course is $10.00.

Today's column features a variety of the volunteer positions which are presently on file at the Victoria Volunteer Bureau.

A single parent centre needs one or two volunteers to babysit for a small group of about five children on Wednesday mornings from 10 to 12 noon. The volunteer should be calm, mature and independent and able to undertake this position on an on-going basis. Mileage or bus fare to the centre, which is in a central location, will be provided.

A development centre for emotionally disabled adults is looking for a volunteer to provide a program of simple handicrafts one afternoon per week, to be arranged with the volunteer. The volunteer should have patience and initiative and should enjoy working in an informal atmosphere. The centre also needs one or two volunteers with similar qualities to accompany members to recreation centres and to encourage them to participate in activities such as swimming. These programs will start in September.

A refugee aid centre is looking for volunteers to assist refugee families settling in Victoria with shopping, orientation to services such as buses and post offices, applying for family allowances, attending public health clinics and other practical assistance. the hours will vary according to the need and the volunteer's time available. The volunteer would first meet the family at their hotel and then at their home once permanent accommodation has been found for them. The centre will provide basic training and support for the volunteers involved in this program.

A victim services program needs independent volunteers to offer a supportive response to the needs and concerns of victims of crime. Volunteers would answer the phone and offer support and appropriate resources to victims, provide practical assistance such as helping to clean up after a crime or accompanying the victim to the doctor or to court, compile information on related community services, maintain records, and promote the services to the public. Volunteers sould have some organizational skills, the ability to listen well, and to work with a minimum of supervision. After an orientation period, volunteers will be asked to give four hours per week, preferably during weekdays. A commitment of one month after orientation is required, but three months would be preferred.

These requests are only a small sample of the many requests on file at the Victoria Volunteer Bureau. To find out more about these and other volunteer positions, call the Bureau at 386-2269. The office is open Monday to Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Brynn Thayer finds a dream come true

THAYER
. . . time of her life

Brynn Thayer is truly having the time of her life playing Jenny Vernon on One Life to Live; so much so, in fact, that she often goes to the studio on her day off just to hang out with fellow castmates.

This Texas-born schoolteacher turned model turned actress thanks her lucky stars for her good fortune.

And how is this for luck: With only limited experience and one evening's preparation, Brynn, herself a soap opera fan, managed to make one of her biggest fantasies a reality by landing in One Life to Live in the role of Llanview's ex-nun, Jenny Vernon.

Not having any bad habits to break in adjusting to the rigid schedule of regular daytime performing, Brynn was able to learn quickly with the help of Judith Light (Karen Wolek), Gerry Anthony (Mario Corelli), and Steve Fletcher (Brad Vernon), all of whom have extensive credentials.

"It was a bizarre and fantastic way to learn," said beaming Brynn.

Although she will take all the breaks she can get, Brynn is quite an adventurer who takes life one day at a time. After teaching the fifth grade in Dallas for three years and loving it, Brynn left one summer with her roommate for the unknowns of the Big Apple.

"The first year, I practically stayed in my apartment just getting over the panic of it all," said Brynn, "but I was not about to swallow my pride and go back to Texas without accomplishing anything in New York."

Soon after, Brynn managed to hook up with a model agency, won a spot doing a coffee commercial, and her career started to perk along. She acquired an agent and starting taking voice lessons to lose her Texas accent. She also attended acting classes which in turn spiraled her into a three-year stream of commercials for household products.

Aptly enough, after morning auditions, Brynn would race home to watch All My Children and One Life to Live.

"I loved Kathy Glass as Jenny Vernon," says Brynn. "In fact, that was my biggest problem when I first took over the role. After watching her work for so long, I found myself for the first five or six months trying to be Kathy playing Jenny."

But now, there's no denying that Brynn has come into her own.

Channel Chatter:

Search for Tomorrow's new head writer, Gabrielle Upton, will start off this September with a bang as many of the show's principals, including Rod Arrants (Travis Sentell), Sherry Mathis (Liza Sentell), Wayne Tippit (Ted Adamson), Lisa Peluso (Wendy Wilkins) and Ralph Byers (Jim Ramsey) will be off to Charleston, N.C., for some scenic and exciting action sequences . . . .

ABC's Ryan's Hope was the first to bring ethnic types and a real locale to daytime TV. It will again break new ground as the popular serial has been sold to the government television network in Ireland — making it the first American soap opera to be seen on European television...

Dear Dr. Levine:

I'm 14 years old and have a big problem.

My girlfriend (14) has great depressions, so bad she stays home from school. I don't feel that this is right for such a young person. She has "fasted" for one-two weeks and also makes herself throw up.

I've tried to help. I suggested professional help or counselling but no go. She's very nergous and shy. I've fought, talked, laughed, and even cried with her about these problems. She says her father was mentally ill and she's going crazy too. I've really tried and yet I still feel I've let her down. What can I do?

Answer: Your friend does have significant emotional problems, but she is fortunate in two respects. One is that her condition is amenable to psychotherapy. Secondly, not many people have as loyal and well-motivated a friend as you are.

She can be helped, but the first step is getting her to a phusician. You might try to talk some sense into her, show her that you care, and suggest that she get help. She may listen to you, but she may just as readily reject your presumed intrusion. You can only try, and even if she can't accept your caring and advice now, she will be grateful for it in the future.

By the way, where are her parents in all of this? If your relationship with them is a warm one, why not talk to them about your concerns. There are plenty of places and people with the proper help for your friend (youth clinics, pediatricians, psychiatrists, etc.). And hang in there. You are a true friend.

Dear Mr. Vichert:

I am a 14-year-old teenager and I have a 19-year-old boyfriend. Last night, he proposed marriage in front of my parents. My parents acted as if he asked me for a date. They said it was my choice. I love him very much but I don't know if I'm ready. Besides, he has mentioned having a child. I don't know how to look after a house; I also can't cook or care for a child. What should I do?

P.S. I am an only child and I hate counsellors.

Answer: I agree with you that you are only a child, certainlyy in the sense of getting married. I can't understand why your parents responded the way they did unless they thought your boyfriend was joking.

I certainly hope he was because his proposal to you, if serious, shows a lack of consideration for you, and a lack of thought about the seriousness of marriage and the responsibility both of you would be assuming.

I think that you are wise to realize that you are not ready for marriage. Of course you can love your boyfriend, but loving him, is quite different than accepting his proposal.

You may find in a couple of years what you want from a boyfriend to be completely different. Your realization that you are not ready, your questioning of your parents response, and your asking for help certainly indicate a degree of maturity that I hope will be helpful to you in making good decisions for yourself.

Dear Dr. Cotter:

Since school has been out, my problem has become harder to solve. There's a girl in school I like and have never met. I'd like to meet her, but I don't see her, a lot, as in school. Most of her friends I know all have gone somewhere.

I'd like to meet or get to know her this summer, but how? I can't wait until school starts again. We're both 15, in the same grade in high school.

Answer: If you don't know her name, and her friends are not around, then you will have to wair until school starts again.

If you do know her name, then find our her address. Perhaps the school will have it. Then you will have to phone or call on her and say "Hi! I want to get to know you". If she doesn't know how to answer you, suggest she write a letter to Youth Clinic and ask our advice.

Dear Dr. Powell:

I am nearly 16 and pregnant about five or six months. I live with my Dad. He doesn't know about it. But it's really starting to show.

I haven't told anyone and I haven't seen a doctor. I can't tell my Dad because he would have me a lot and he has been through a lot these last few months. I don't know where to go to get help without my Dad knowing and I don't want to keep the baby. Sometimes I think of killing myself. I really don't know. Please help before it's too late.

Answer: Pregnancy is one condition or state you cannot keep secret.

While it is difficult to tell your father, he will find out. You will need his help making the right decision for yourself and the baby. If you leave without letting him know where you are, he will be very hurt and will worry even more about you.

If it is too difficult to talk to him alone, make an appointment with a social worker at the Children's Aid Society and you will have someone to giveyou the support you need. There are people in the community who can help you.

First you need medical care urgently because there is a greater risk for yourself than for the baby.

The second thing you must do is make plans for the remainder of the pregnancy and plans for your future and the baby's life. There are homes where you can live and continue your schooling if you do not feel you can stay home. There are other alternatives which you can discuss with the social workers at the Children's Aid.

Astrological Forecast for Saturday, August 23, 1980
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Piece together bits of information — clues will become evident. You'll get complete story — and you will know where you stand with a "special" person. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. Question is answered in affirmative.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Emphasis on reputation, special accolades, honors, standing in community. Family "situation" harmonizes — understanding can replace conflict. Another Taurus, a Libra and a Scorpio figure in your personal scenario. You'll get the promotion!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Define terms, steer away from nefarious schemes which "wink" at the law. Accent on long-range implications, communication, travel, money involving investment or confidential data connected with close associate or mate.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Dig deep — strike pay dirt by refusing to accept "amateur" or superficial judgments. Bring priorities into focus — you are involved and your assets are worth more than originally anticipated. Know it, act accordingly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Review past efforts, contacts — finish current project or assignment before accepting new obligations. Aries, Libra natives figure prominently. Accent on legal controversy — you are likely to emerge victorious.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): New deal indicated where work, dependents and health enter picture. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. Check schedule, be aware of pacing, avoid lifting heavy objects. Your talents, abilities surge to forefront — and you will receive plaudits.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You get "picture in advance" of important, personal event. Follow through, display self-confidence. Emotional responses dominate — you could fall madly in love. Speculation, a variety of sensations are featured. Cancer, Leo, Aquarius natives figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You get favorable news regarding property, closing of transaction, long-range project. You have more "working room" than originally anticipated. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. You get surprise invitation to social affair. Accept!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Dismantle, tear down, review, revise — it is time to rebuild on more solid base. Short journey is on agenda; relative is confused, but displays "bravado." Be understanding, but do not sacrifice basic interests. Message becomes increasingly clear.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent on discovery, locating lost object, learning value of possessions. You gain access to confidential data. You could be invited to a "secret meeting." Member of opposite sex does care and you'll be aware of it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Money, power, authority and love dominate a "very interesting" personal scenario. Cycle high; you'll be at right place at crucial moment. Emphasis on return of domestic tranquility, ability to locate a "genuine bargain." Taurus, Libra, Scorpio natives figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Maintain aura of mystery; be discreet, check behind scenes, realize that you could be holding proverbial trump card. You're able to define terms and to perfect techniques. You learn where you stand, how to improve position and to establish policy.

IF AUGUST 23 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a combination of romanticism and practicality; it is difficult for others to deceive you, but you can do a good job of fooling yourself. You seem to know immediately when others are bluffing — when you follow your own instincts, you emerge victorious. When you permit yourself to be swayed from original decisions, your powers are diminished. In October, logjam to progress is removed. You have recently undergone a series of delays and disappointments. But cycle is changing and you will soon have greater freedom and opportunity for fulfillment and happiness. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life.

Dear Mike:
I own a 1979 Pinto with the 2.3-litre engine and automatic. I've heard that the automatic transmissions in late-model Ford products never need a fluid change. Is this true? The Pinto owner's manual, which is quite detailed in respect to maintenance, doesn's say a word about changing automatic transmission fluid — certainly not that you never need to. What's the scoop?

Leary Larry

Dear Larry:
Ford says you never have to change fluid under normal driving conditions, but I say that changing fluid every 25,000 miles is cheap insurance if you intend to keep your car any length of time — 100,000 miles or more. I say bunk to Ford and most of the other automakers on all their extended service intervals.

Dear Mike:
Can gasohol damage a car's fuel filter? I've heard it both ways.

Gasoholic

Dear Gasoholic:
Yes, certain types of filter elements can turn gummy and lose their porosity. Gasohol can also damage rubber connectors at the ends of in-line fuel filters.

Dear Mike:
My 1965 Mustang 260 V-8 shows about 40 psi of oil pressure cold. Warmed up, the gauge drops to 30 psi at cruising speeds and 10-15 psi during idle. The engine uses no oil. Are these oil-pressure readings abnormally low?

Lost PSI

Dear Lost:
Not especially. Your engine undoubtedly showed higher oil-pressure readings when new, but for a V-8 that's probably seen over 100,000 miles, the readings you mention sound about right.

Super-smart computers coming

SACKVILLE, N.B. (CP) — Computers with minds of their own are among the technological breakthoughs that will revolutionize life in the 1980s and '90s, says scientist David Suzuki.

Dr. Suzuki, host of the CBC television series The Nature of Things, told a meeting of 500 Canadian high school science teachers Thursday that scientific progress, not inflation, mortgage rates or separatism, is the most important issue for Canada in the coming decade.

"This revolution makes political issues seem trivial in comparison."

Only a few years ago there were no computers, pesticides, television or nuclear devices, and science will continue to revolutionize people's lives just as dramatically in the coming years.

"Every invention changes the very nature of our lives. These changes are irreversible, but most of us have little perception of what is happening."

The amount of human information doubles every seven years, he said.

Suzuki predicted that every household will have its own computer within 10 years. "They will do much of what has long been considered women's work: cook, shop and provide reminders.

"But while they may make life much easier, I worry about the relationship between computer and humans."

It is folly to think that computers know only what they are told, or that if it becomes too pervasive one can really "pull the plug."

"There is a new-level computer on the horizon with artificial intelligence that will easily outdistance the human brain," Suzuki said.

Computers will soon be to humans what humans are to ants — "and this isn't any pie in the sky. There is such an explosive potential."

And society is irrevocably committed to computers, he added.

The rate of computer evolution is astounding. Information from one now can be transmitted to another in a matter of seconds.

However, great possibilities also exist for the human brain, Suzuki said.

Man is only beginning to learn about its functions, but with what little is known the secrets of faith healing and hypnosis can be better understood.

"The mind in many cases can control the body. The brain can produce tremendous amounts of hormones to overcome pain and other situations and the understanding of such things is barely beginning."

Red Deer East Indian victim of cross-burning

RED DEER (CP) — The shape of a cross measuring one metre by two metres was burned into a lawn Thursday night, while the East Indian man who owns the property was in Edmonton taking treatment for a heart condition.

Vishnu Katarey, a high-school teacher at Innisfail, Alta., said from Edmonton he can not understand the reason for the incident and is worried because it happened while his wife was home alone.

"My wife is alone in Red Deer. It may be nothing, but how would you feel if it was your lawn and you had to sleep just on the other side of the wall?"

It was the third case involving a cross-shaped burning of a lawn in Red Deer in the last few weeks.

One of the other incidents also involved an East Indian.

Katarey said he has not noticed any racism directed towards him or his family during the several years he has lived in Red Deer.

His wife said neighbors saw the burning cross and woke her up after calling police. She said she has noticed no other vandalism at her home.

Premiers agree — on motherhood

By Mary Janigan
FP News Service

WINNIPEG — After 10 hours of deadlocked wrangling, Canada's 10 provincial premiers have produced only a vague motherhood statement on constitutional reform, which merely rejects "artificial" federal deadlines.

The statement — released late last evening by Manitoba Premier Sterling Lyon — does not even demand that the federal government wait for provincial consensus before moving to bring the constitution home. The four-page statement only gently touches on the main constitutional bombshells of economic power and control of resources.

However, the provinces have agreed to set up a ministerial committee to coordindate some key provincial economic policies as a mild and possible alternative to federal demands.

And — as a sign of the almost unbridgeable gap between Ontario and most other provinces — the communique neatly sidesteps all other controversial issues such as the $6-million federal advertising campaign on the constitution, control of offshore resources and languagage rights.

"I am pleased that the tenor of the statement is such that it is a positive sort of statement," Ontario Premier William Davis told reporters later. "I don't think the statement could be interpreted as confronting."

Lyon — who spoke for all the premiers at a short press conference — added: "I would regard this document as a non-confrontationist doucment. We were trying to suggest how we can better assist in the process. We are all Canadians first and foremost."

At the opening of yesterday's meeting, the premiers agreed that they had two explosive constitutional issues to tackle: the threat that the federal government will act unilaterally if next month's federal-provincial conference on the constitution breaks down and the federal demand that the courts should examine any provincial legislation which impedes the free flow of goods and services between provinces.

In an opening address, Lyon had insisted that the September conference is not a "make or break meeting" and he denounced the federal proposal on economic powers as "a fundamental reduction in the ability of the provinces to guide or to influence events within their jurisdictions."

Although the majority of the provinces agreed with Lyon, Ontraio almost single-handedly insisted that the final constitutional communique should not contain any denunciation of unilateral federal action. Morever, Ontario managed to water down the premiers' stand on the issue of economic powers, reflecting the province's repeated insistence that a strong economic union is the greatest constitutional priority.

Confronted with the need to produce some kind of unified stance, the premiers battled for nearly three hours on the wording of their communique.

To answer federal threats of unilateral action, the statement says only that "premiers are committed to continue the negotiations without any artificial deadlines and to pursue constitutional discussions to a successful conclusion."

And on the tricky issue of the economy, the statement merely says that "any policy of changing the constitutional areas of economic concern should be done only with the consensus of the government affected."

In his opening address, Lyon had suggested that the premiers form an intergovernmental committee of finance and economic development ministers to pound out joint procurement policies, major capital projects and research and development work. The final communique agrees to set up these committees, "not just in the provincial, but in the public interest of Canada as a whole."

Lyon said that this proposal could be viewed as a possible alternative to the proposed federal laws on economic powers — even though the communique certainly did not make that point.

Other key points include the following:

—Constitutional reform must accommodate the legitimate interests of all parts of the country.

—It must produce a federation "where both the federal and provincial government are strong and viable."

—Basic human and democratic rights must be protected "by the most appropriate means".

—Measures to alleviate regional disparities must be continued and expanded.

ACCIDENTS CAN HAPPEN to even the experts, and sailing is a great way to have the wind taken out of your sails. Caroline Burgess, 16, is the sailing instructor at Frenchman's Bay Yacht Club in Pickering, just east of Toronto, and although capsizing isn't on the curriculum, her plight shows it can happen to even the best sailors.

This PM outclassed by rival's smile

By CAROL GOAR
FP News Service

OTTAWA — The prime minister knew he was outclassed. He admitted it sadly.

The Honorable Leader of Her Majesty's Opposition had beaten him at the polls, out-charmed him on the dance floor and eclipsed him in the House of Commons.

Parliament can be harsh in its judgments, even when its members are a bunch of brainy 18-to-23-year-olds, in Ottawa for a week to test the high-backed seats and rarified air of its august chambers.

But Rick Pardo, the 22-year-old Waterloo University student playing prime minister, was determined to take the ups and downs of office in stride.

It was readily apparent to all observers in the House that 21-sear-old Opposition Leader Ruth Romanow of Winnipeg was pretty, bubbly and had won every male heart in the place.

"The popularity of the opposition leader has something to do with the dance last night," said Pardo, in true enigmatic prime ministerial style. "The honorable leader of the party opposite has certain physical advantages I cannot match."

The House snickered. Romanow, a dark-haired English student from the University of Manitoba, flashed him one of her winning grins.

Close to 100 students from across the country had gathered in the musty red Senate chamber for an elaborate Parliamentary charade, complete with a Speaker, a Hansard reporter, simultaneous translation, Beauchesne's meticulous rules of procedure and their own legislation on everything from off-shore resources to recognition of the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

The young participants — many of whom hope to be back in a decade or so as genuine MPs — are hardly newcomers to politics.

Pardo, for instance, is a six-year veteran of the Ontario Youth Parliament. His experience showed. He was able to assure the mock Opposition with effortless smoothness that his government "would look into" soaring energy costs, the moral and economic ramifications of nuclear power, inadequate rail facilities and the prickly question of who owns offshore oil.

He plans to seek office someday, after a successful career in business.

Romanow is less sure of her plans. She says the mock Parliament has sparked her interest in national politics, but her ambitions remain vague.

The political stereotypes were all there. There was a young Winnipeger who could puff out his chest, plant his hands in his pockets and attack the government with all the rhetorical flourish of an aspiring John Diefenbaker. There was a deputy prime minister from British Columbia whose head seemed full of arcane rules and procedures. There was a disgruntled Opposition MP who couldn't get the floor of the House and decided instead to send his noble reflections, in writing, to the lone journalist sitting in the Press Gallery, by messenger. There were the hecklers, the jokers and the members who sat and read their newspapers complacently, ignoring the urgent priorities at hand.

Kingston Conservative MP Flora MacDonald was Speaker of the House. "I trust your decorum will prove far better that that of your counterparts who meet regularly in this and the other place," she said.

By and large, it did not. A brief fistfight erupted on the floor before the session began over a stuffed animal — apparently a mascot of some sort — which one of the young Parliamentarians had brought to the sitting. Several of the members seemed to have trouble fighting back fits of giggles whenever they rose to speak.

Everybody noticed one refreshing difference between the mock Parliament and the real thing. One out of every five of the youth delegates was a woman. In the House of Commons, the ratio is one in 20.

Only the sharp-eyed noticed a second astonishing break with tradition.

There were too many discreet notes shooting back and forth between certain MPs, too many dimples, too many coy smiles.

It could only mean one horrifying thing — outright flirting in the Upper Chamber.

The good Senators would be shocked. Or jealous.

Canadian oil tanker tries NW Passage

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — The tanker Irving Arctic and the icebreaking tug Irving Birch have started a historic voyage to Rae Point on Melville Island in the Northwest Passage.

The Irving Arctic, the largest Canadian-owned tanker, will become the largest Canadian commercial vessel to venture so far west into the passage. Melville Island is in the west end of the passage, north of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

However, the voyage will fall short of the record achieved by the American-owned ice-breaking supertanker Manhattan in 1969. With a displacement of 15,000 tons — one third of that of the Irving Arctic's 37,677 tons, the sleek and powerful Manhattan completely traversed the passage and then made the return trip.

The Irving Arctic's voyage began quietly Aug. 14 when she and the Birch slipped away from their berths here without fanfare or general awareness of their mission.

The Irving Arctic is the largest tanker registered in Canada, a spokesman for Irving Oil Ltd. said Thursday.

The ship was built at the Irving-owned Saint John Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. here to Baltic ice class specifications, the highest ice class category in commercial shipping, he said.

The 37,677-ton vessel has 17,000 horsepower, is about 200 metres long and 30 metres wide and draws 12 metres of water.

The purpose of the voyage is to deliver petroleum products from the Irving refinery here to the Pan-Arctic Oil Ltd. exploration site at Rae Point.

The Arctic will reach Resolute on Cornwallis Island approximately next Thursday and will rendezvous there with three government icebreakers, which will escorted it for the final part of the voyage, the spokesman said. Depending on ice and weather conditions, the estimated arrival date is Aug. 30.

Decline in deficit

OTTAWA (UPC) — The federal deficit declined in May compared to a year earlier but the total for the first two months of this fiscal year has still increased to nearly $2.5 billion.

Finance Minister Allan MacEachen said the deficit decline in May to $505 million from a year earlier — on revenues of $3.954 billion and expenditures of $4.459 billion — was an improvement on the $707 million deficit in May 1979.

However, the deficit for April and May, the first two months of the federal fiscal year, rose to $2.468 billion on revenues of $5.917 billion and expenditures of $8.385 billion. Last year the two-month deficit was $2.424 billion.

Constitution rivals seals

OTTAWA (CP) — While nothing seems to outweigh the anti-seal hunt letters in the prime minister's mail box, the constitution is running a close second these days.

Thousands of letters and telegrams have poured in responding to Prime Minister Trudeau invitation to Canadians to mail in their suggestions for a new preamble for the constitution in his July 1 message.

A spokesmen estimated 2,000 letters arrived last month.

The letters are read by a lawyer, who forwards valid suggestions to the federal-provincial relations office. The office is preparing the prime minister for the Sept. 8-12 meeting of first ministers on the constitution.

The lawyer is also preparing what the spokesman called a major report on the constitutional mail for the prime minister and his senior advisers.

Meanwhile, the Federation des francophones hors Quebec, which speaks for francophones living outside Quebec, sent a telegram Friday to Justice Minister Jean Chretien and Saskatchewan Attorney-General Roy Romanow, cochairmen of the summer-long constitutional talks, requesting a meeting next week.

WINTERS: her book has aroused talk

Shelley's painful memories

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "My writer friends are all mad at me. They want to know how I dare to do this to them. What right do I have to be on the bestseller list?"

This was Shelley Winters responding as she has most of her life, with a mixture of guilt and small-girl delight. Odd and exciting and sometimes tragic things have happened to her with astounding consistency, and she has written about many of them in Shelley, Also Known as Shirley (Morrow; $14.95).

The sinkable Shelley was spending a few days here at her Coldwater Canyon home, appearing on some TV talk shows and sitting out the actors' strike. The role of bestselling author obviously pleases her, despite sour grapes of writer friends who resent her success.

Shelley Also Known as Shirley (her real name: Shirley Schrift) did not come easily. She started with one publisher, sat down to write and found herself wordless — a Winters first. She abandoned the idea, then conquered her mental block about reviewing her life. For the new publisher the reminiscence flowed like Niagara.

"I started to get it under control by filing stories in folders," said Winters. "That helped me organize the chapters, and everything fell into place.

Unlike most celebrity authors cho claim "I did it all myself," Winters admits to heavy editing. She acknowledges in a foreword: friends Jan and Robert Lowell, who helped in the early stages; and editor Ellis Amburn.

"I tried to improve my use of language after my (working) association with Charles Laughton," the actress said.

Were some of the memories painful?

"Oh, yes. Especially the part with my first husband and with Vittorio (Gassman, husband No. 2). Also the breakup with Burt (Lancaster). I think I tried to commit suicide afterward. All I know is I drank a bottle of brandy and swallowed a handful of pills."

Her book has aroused talk because of her frank accounts of dalliances with famous stars.

"There were some I now wish I had left out. Like Bill Holden. He was a rather wild young man when I first knew him — a bottle a day.

Animation festival opening

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 300 guests and filmmakers from 30 countries are gathering here for the Ottawa International Animation Festival which begins Saturday.

One hundred and thirteen animated films from 17 countries have been entered in competition, including 30 from Canada.

The festival will pay special tribute to two animation pioneers, Ladislas Starewicz, whose best work was produced in Russia before the revolution, and Charles Bowers, who created Mutt and Jeff and The Katzenjammer Kids.

Actors, moguls bargain

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Both sides in the actors strike are back at the bargaining table for the first time in more than two weeks, and management has vowed to make every effort to end the 32-day walkout "without jeopardizing the future of our industry."

Negotiators for the two striking actors unions and the major film and television producers and networks said they entered Thursday's talks with "cautious optimism."

Billy Hunt, chief management negotiator, said industry executives had voted "total support" of the negotiations and all had agreed not to sign any individual interim agreements offered by the actors.

The negotiation session, the first since Aug. 4, was arranged by the U.S. Mediation Service and began in mid-afternoon at the Hollywood offices of the Association of Motion Picture and Television Producers.

The strike, now in its fifth week, has meant a loss of $47 million a week, according to calculations by studio heads.

"We recognize our responsibility in trying to solve the issues," industry executives said in a statement.

"Thousands of members of our industry who are not directly involved in this strike are not working and are going through a very trying financial period."

Among the exeuctives present at the meeting were Cardon Walker of Walt Disney studios, Aaron Spelling and Leonard Goldberg of Spelling-Goldberg Productions, David Begelman of MGM, Dennis Stanfill and Alan Hirschfield of 20th Century-Fox, Barry Diller of Paramount, Grant Tinker of MTM Productions, Lew Wasserman of Universal studios, Frank Wells of Warner Bros. and Alan Ladd Jr. of the Ladd Co.

While the bargaining session was getting under way Thursday, a throng of about 4,000 striking actors with several hundred fans marched in a lighthearted mile-long picket line at the Disney Studios in nearby Burbank.

The picket line drew more actors than any of the previous picket lines which have been set up on a selective basis at The Burbank Studios, 20th Century Fox, and Universal.

Veteran actors Burt Lancaster, Dana Andrews, Tom Poston and Cesar Romero joined the picket line.

Other celebrity pickets included Erik Estrada, star of CHiPs, Loretta Swit, Mike Farrell and Alan Alda from M-A-S-H, Robert Walden and Mason Hume from Lou Grant and Patrick Duffy, Charlene Tilton and Steve Kanaly from Dallas.

A Dixieland band accompanied the pickets, who composed their own words to a refrain of, "M-I-C ... K-E-Y ... M-O-U-S-E."

garden notes

Further to this business of reading the labels on lawn fertilizers and sorting out what all those figures really mean, which I tackled yesterday, it is nitrogen which gives the grass its dark green color and promotes turf density. But not all sources of nitrogen give you the same quality of fertilization. A good fertilizer will usually list the sources of the nitrogen on its package.

If you see that the sources of nitrogen are all of the fast-acting variety like ammonium sulfate or ammonium nitrate, you know that the nitrogen will be a one-shot deal, all quick release and no follow-up. This type of nitrogen gives quick greening but it can dehydrate grass plants with an excessive build-up of salts in the soil. Overdoses easily leach out of the soil and do no good to the environment. Ideally, the nitrogen sources should be a combination of fast-acting and slow-release ones.

Phosphorus is used by the plants to promote their early development and root systems. That is why the phosphorus number should be high in fertilizer which is used in seeding lawns.

The role of potash is not so clearly understood. It is known that potash adds to the over-all health and vigor of the plants and gives hardiness to the turf. It is felt that potash makes cell walls thicker, enabling plants to hold moisture better and resist disease.

The best times to fertilize established lawns are in early spring, late spring, late summer and fall. Fertilizers are thus avoided during the summer's heat. This is the ideal and actually one of these applications could be dropped for the sake of the pocketbook without endangering your lawn.

Fall feeding, if a good fertilizer is used with some slow-release nitrogen, is highly efficient because as the weather cools the action of the fertilizer also slows, as it depends on available moisture and warmth to act.

Many home gardeners also like to apply a weed killer, or combination fertilizer-weed control product in the fall when the plant's activity is directed down to its roots for the winter. So, at this time the plant is more likely to slurp down its own destruction.

I've mentioned the use of spreaders for distributing both grass seed and fertilizers. It is most important to borrow, rent or purchase a spreader that distributes the material evenly. Uneven application of fertilizer causes the lawn to look unpleasantly patchy, bright green in spots and pale in others.

It's also important to determine the correct setting on the spreader. To arrive at this you will likely have to refer carefully to directions that usually come with the spreader and label directions on seed or fertilizer packages.

In distributing the seed or fertilizer, some home gardeners like to halve the rate of application and go over the area twice, the second time at right angles to the first. Followed by two light rakings at right angles, this method helps ensure even distribution.

Though some home gardeners have rotary spreaders, I suspect most of us use the drop-type spreaders. In the use of the drop spreader, take special care to overlap the tires each strip you apply. If you use the same tire tracks there will inevitably be strips where no material has been applied.

When you begin a strip, start the spreader first and then open the spreader. Opening it first, before you are moving, can result in a thick layer of material falling through at the beginning of the strip.

It helps also to establish one or two header strips at each end of the lawn between which the long strips are to be laid, or in the case of a rounded lawn, around the circumference. In this way, when you come to the end of a strip you can turn off the spreader, make your turn, start up for the next strip and then turn on the spreader.

Fertilizers will eventually corrode even the best of spreaders and in tomorrow's column, continuing this series on lawn care, I'll describe how to avoid this particular problem.

Holiday shopping bill attacked

The government's proposed holiday shopping regulation act will create a chaotic mess on holidays and Sundays in the entire province, Eileen Dailly (NDP — Burnaby North) said Thursday.

She said Bill 58 — which replaced an earlier bill pulled from the order paper after considerable opposition from several small business, church and union groups — is the same as the first bill.

The only change was addition of a schedule of retail outlets which would be allowed to open on holidays and Sundays, including drug stores, nurseries, service stations, restaurants and education, recreational and amusement facilities.

Muncipalities will have the option of adding to that list with a bylaw, provided it is passed by a majority of voters in a referendum. In the first bill, all store openings were left up to the municipalities.

Mrs. Dailly, speaking during second-reading debate, said the same basic concern remains — that is, where one municipality allows certain stores to remain open, while an adjoining municipality does not.

"I think many people who objected to the first bill along with the Opposition, actually think because of the type of presentation of this bill that they really have a major change, but they have not," she said.

Frank Mitchell (NDP — Esquimalt-Port Renfrew) said the schedule will be hard to enforce because of the wide variety of things sold in some stores.

"Take what the drugstores are selling today — cameras, binoculars, stero cassette decks, calculators, plumbing supplies, car parts, furniture," he said. "You will have chaotic conditions in allowing so many variations of what can be sold, what areas can sell it, what type of businesses can be left open."

Iran hostage killings denied

Times News Services

TEHRAN (CP) — The militant students holding the 52 U.S. hostages in Iran today denied a Lebanese radio report that five of the captives had been shot and killed while trying to escape.

"We deny the report, which comes from Zionist Phalangist radio in Beirut," a student spokesman at the occupied U.S. Embassy in Tehran said in a telephone interview.

The spokesman said the embassy, where some of the hostages are thought to be held, has received numerous calls from all over the world asking for comment on the report.

The foreign ministry and presidential office also issued firm denials.

"I have contacted the students at the embassy and I am authorized to say there is no truth in this report," Foreign Ministry spokesman A. Hashemi said when contacted by telephone from Nicosia.

The report was broadcast by the Voice of Lebanon, the Beirut radio station of the Lebanese Christian Phalange party. Quoting unidentified "Arab diplomatic sources," it said five of the Americans who have been captives since last Nov. 4 chiselled a hole in a wall and then were shot and killed as they tried to scale an outer wall.

In Washington, the U.S. state department desk monitoring the hostage crisis said it has heard nothing of any such happening.

Switzerland, which handles U.S. interests in Iran, said it has received a formal denial of a Lebanese radio report from the Iranian foreign ministry.

The Swiss foreign office spokesman in Bern, Othmar Uhl, said the Swiss embassy in Tehran also confirmed that the report was erroneous. He did not elaborate.

The report came on the 293rd day of captivity for the 52 hostages.

In a telephone call from in London to the U.S. embassy a spokesman for the militants who have been holding the American hostage for 293 days said: According to our information there was nothing. It has been denied."

4 Britons captives in Iran

By Jane O'Hara

LONDON — In the past 10 days, four British citizens have been arrested and held incommunicado in Iran on charges of spying. Attempts by the British government to gain consular access to them have been met with silence by the Iranian government: what is worse, the British authorities are still completely in the dark about the whereabouts of two of the four.

Although the numbers involved, and the length of the captivity is small by comparison, and the surrounding publicuty has yet to blow it up into an international crisis — the British government now finds itself with a mini-version of the American hostage situation. Their continuing search for a diplomatic solution to the problem has been met with humiliating rebuffs by the Iranians.

Like the Americans, who have reverted to working the diplomatic channels after the April rescue mission fiasco, the British are at a loss over what further action to take.

The four Britons arrested and missing in Iran are Mrs. Jean Waddell, a former secretary to the Anglican Bishop in Iran; Tony Allaway, the Tehran correspondent for the Times newspaper; and Dr. John Coleman and his wife, Mary, who ran a medical clinic in Yazd, a provincial town about 400 miles south of Tehran.

All are alleged to be spies, although Waddell has also been charged with other crimes, such as having links with the British Broadcasting Corporation and having seduced unnamed Iranian officials.

In the rhetoric of revolutionary Iran, Britain is considered almost as politically poisonous as the U.S. lately.

PUPPET GOVERNMENT is depicted in the marionettes of West German chancellor Helmut Schmidt and his opponent in the October general elections, Franz Josef Strauss. The puppets were on display in a Munich doll store.

Times on strike again

LONDON (UPI) — Journalists struck The Times of London today in a wage dispute that threatened to close down the newspaper for the second time in nine months.

The editors and reporters called the strike to back demands for a 21 percent wage increase — 3 percent more than management offered.

The Times local of the National Union of Journalists which represents 270 reporters and editors of the newspaper and three supplements decided to strike after arbitration talks held Thursday and today failed.

Employees of the Sunday Times are not striking, the management said.

The management, in an effort to avert a strike, told employees the company will lose $23.2 million this year and cannot afford to pay a 21 percent pay increase.

Dougal Nisbet-Smith, managing director of Times Newspapers, said the company already had been hard hit by an 11-month dispute with printers over new technology that closed the plant down for 11 months last year. "I am sure I have no need to repeat that damage done to The Times or any of our newspapers by industrial action could only further weaken their position and, indeed, their ability to weather the economic recession," he said.

Nisbet-Smith said The Times had borrowed $42 million already this year "merely to continue in business."

The Times only resumed publication last November after a year-long suspension of publication, brought on by a dispute over the introduction of new technology in the print shops, an absense that reportedly cost Times Newspapers Ltd. $94 million.

The 21 percent pay raise recommended by the arbitrator would boost reporters' minimum salaries at The Times by $4,700 to $23,200 a year and would raise the average journalist's pay from $27,140 to $33,000.

Bolivian troop on killing orgy

LONDON (UPI) — Amnesty International said Thursday it had eyewitness accounts describing how Bolivian troops rampaged through a mountain mining town in an orgy of killing, kidnapping and rape against people opposed to the military regime.

The independent human rights organization said as many as 900 people might have disappeared on Aug. 4 from the town of Caracoles, 18 days after military leaders seized power in Bolivia.

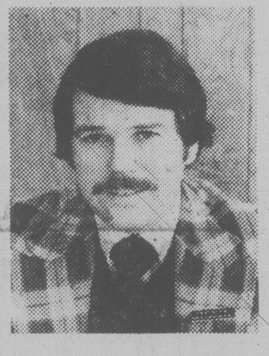
$250 GM REBATE

Brian McLean Talks About THE GM $250 REBATE



Why is this a good time to buy? Because we are in a "Buyers Market". Due to the high dealer inventory levels General Motors of Canada is offering a $250.00 rebate to dealers who have qualified under an incentive program. "Empress" has qualified and will issue a $250.00 rebate cheque to those customers who purchase an eligible vehicle in the stipulated time period. The $250.00 rebate applies to all new cars and Light Duty Trucks excluding Skylark and Phoenix purchased between August 23, 1980 and September 6, 1980 inclusive. With over 390 vehicles in stock, Empress offers the largest selection on Vancouver Island. We have turned over the entire Douglas and Topaz area of our property to new car and truck outdoor display and now offer over 150 vehicles on display. Our entire inventory of new cars and trucks is in a "road ready" condition and waits for your licence plates. Remember it's a "Buyer's Market". Come in, make your best deal and then receive your $250.00 rebate cheque.

ARE YOU LONELY, DEpressed, can't think straight, life in doldrums, troubled or financial problems? Jesus Christ is the answer. As He said in His own words, "if you ask me to come into your heart and ask for ANYTHING, it will be done". So why don't you just try it, after all what have you got to loose? Maybe I don't, but God still loves you. To me, it's worth paying for this ad.

SALT WATER FRONTAGE

Unique waterfront acreage sites ready for your recreational use. Located on the Alberni Inlet, just south of the city of Port Alberni. This development offers many opportunities including the following:
1. PRIVACY — each site is approximately 5 acres, and has a minimum waterfrontage of 148' (23 lots presently availabe.)
2. ACCESSIBILITY — easily reached by automobile (21 miles south of the city of Port Alberni, on the Bamfield road.) or by boat (the distance is slightly less going this way.)
3. MARINA FACILITIES — as an owner, of one of the lots, you automatically receive a berth in the modern marina being constructed on the north end of the development. Visitor and guest berths also available.
4. WATER — will be supplied through a piped-in system to each lot.
5. FINANCING — terms are available with mortgage rates at 12% annum.
6. VALUE — privately owned waterfront property is becoming scarce "They" are not making any more waterfront. Lot prices rafgne from $38,500 to $42,500.
7. FISHING — only yards away from some of the best fishing on the west coast.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient, advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Heavy are our
Memory brings you back once more,
To the time when you were with us,
To the happy days of yore.

308 CARDS OF THANKS

SINCERE THANKS FROM ALL of Miss A. M. Jennings family for their care and concern during her lifetime. Special thanks to the pallbearers, Ladies of the Moose, and Eastern Star and the Cowichan District Hospital, Pat Petersen.

309 IN MEMORIAM

KARAGIANIS — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, John M. Karagianis, who passed away August 22, 1971.

This month comes with deep regret,
It brings back a day we shall not forget.
You fell asleep without a goodbye,
But our memories of you will never die.
You left us so suddenly, your thoughts unknown,
But left us memories we are proud to own.

—Always remembered by wife Margaret and daughter Linda.

MOSS - In loving memory of our only son, Lloyd Robert, who passed away suddenly August 22, 1977.

What we would give if we could say
"Hello son" in the same old way.
To hear your voice, to see your smile,
To sit with you and chat awhile.
So you who have a son,
Treasure him with care,
For you'll never know the heartache,
'Til you see his empty chair.

Very sadly missed by Dad and Mom.

MOSS - In loving memory or our only brother, Lloyd Robert, who passed away suddenly August 22, 1977.

Softly the leaves of memory fall,
Gently we gather and treasure them all,
Unseen, unheard, he is always near,
Still loved, still missed, and forever dear.

Sadly missed by his sisters Sherry, Betty and brother-in-law Leo.

What stitches are most important for your sewing needs?

If you're buying a sewing machine for the first time, you may be somewhat confused as to what stitches you really need for basic home sewing. What to look for: A straight stitch that does not skip — your basic working stitch. A zig zag stitch to keep edges from rolling. A blind stitch for hemming. A buttonhole stitch that's easy for you to set up and operate and a stretch stitch for knits.

Workers seize power plant

SAN SALVADOR (UPI) — Virtually all of El Salvador was blacked out by a strike of 1,500 electrical workers vowing there would be no lights until fired co-workers are rehired and alleged political repression ends.

Most Salvadorans spent Thursday night without electricity and tens of thousands were without water. Only hospitals and a few scattered business and homes with gasoline generators had power.

Leaders of the 1,500 electrical workers who walked off the job Thursday afternoon said the strike would continue indefinitely. They demanded an end to "government repression" and the reinstatement of 60 workers fired last week for participating in a leftist-led strike.

"We came ready for this moment and we will demonstrate to the world that this genocidal government will not destroy the workers' struggle," said Hector Recinos, secretary-general of the National Union Federation of Salvadoran Workers.

The federation, a powerful umbrella group of 30 labor unions with 50,000 members, shut down nine hydroelectrical and thermoelectrical plants throughout El Salvador at about 5 p.m. EDT.

Salvadoran officials said the work stoppage would cost the country $10 million a day with much of the nation's commercial activity paralyzed.

A joint command of the nation's four largest guerrilla groups said it would initiate "military actions" in support of the walkout.

In San Salvador, armed youths stopped a car and three buses, forced out passengers and set the vehicles on fire with gasoline bombs. It was not clear if the firebombings were related to the guerrillas' call for military actions.

Before the strike, government troops killed four leftist guerrillas in San Vincente, 50 miles east of the captial.

In Santa Ana, 39 miles northwest of San Salvador, a hospital spokesman said nine soldiers were being treated after a shootout, but military officials gave no details.

Dozen terrorist blasts rock Manila buildings

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Terrorist bombs exploded in more than a dozen government and commercial buildings in Manila today, including two international banks, injuring at least one person, authorities said.

Police said the blasts occurred almost simultaneously at around mid-afternoon during office hours.

A woman was slightly injured by an explosion in the legal office of the Metropolitan Manila Commission, headed by Imelda Marcos, wife of Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos, police said. Mrs. Marcos was not in the building at the time of the blast.

Authorities also said home-made time bombs exploded in three banks — the local Metropolitan Bank, the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank and the New York-based Citibank.

Bombs also went off in the Philippine American Insurance Life Co., a shopping mall, two government buildings and a private office, they said.

Most of the bombs had been placed in toilets and empty rooms.

Japanese spurn crippled N-sub

TOKYO (UPI) — Fearing radiation leakage, Japan today refused a crippled Soviet nuclear submarine passage through its territorial waters.

Government officials said notification of the refusal was made through the Soviet Embassy in Tokyo as a Soviet tug and three companion ships manoeuvered to shepherd the submarine to its Siberian base.

A fire swept the 4,600-ton, Echo-1 submarine Thursday east of Okinawa, killing at least nine crewmen and seriously burning three others. Officials said 55 survivors were evacuated Thursday by a Soviet cargo ship, leaving a skeleton crew on the submarine.

Japanese military experts said the nuclear submarine may have been on a spy mission.

About 10 minutes after the Soviet tugboat began towing the sub southward from Okinawa today, the vessels halted, Japanese Maritime Safety officials said.

An official said: "We don't know why the operation has been halted. Anyway, the (Soviet ships) were there and drifting."

He speculated that the Soviets intended to tow the sub to its base, about 1,500 miles away, through the East China Sea and Tsushima Strait between Japan and South Korea.

A government spokesman said, "The MSA will maintain a close watch for any violation of Japan's territorial waters."

The Japanese Maritime Safety Agency said initial reports indicated no radiation leakage after the fire but it maintained a precautionary warning about possible radiation spillage to ships in the area.

Agency vessels were shadowing the towing operation in an effort to see if any radioactivity is leaking from the vessel's twin nuclear reactors.

The submarine caught fire 98 miles east of Okinawa, the closest to Japan that a Soviet submarine had ever been spotted on the surface.

Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) - Prices were mixed in heavy trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. Volume at mid-day was 3,579,178 shares.

Of issues traded, 153 advanced, 130 declined and 201 were unchanged.

B.C. Resources Investment Corp. led traders in the industrials and advanced .10 to $6.90 on 27,765 shares. Renn Industries was unchanged at $2 on 11,800 shares, Taro Industries remained steady at $5.50 and Canadian Javelin declined .10 to $1.50 on 3,196. Kaiser Resources remained steady at $33.50 and Balco Industries was unchanged at $7⅜.

Mundee Mines Ltd. led resource and development board traders and advanced .05 to $1.20 on 275,100 shares. Sunexco Energy jumped .20 to $4.50 on 133,700 shares, Waddy Lake Warrants climbed .15 to $2 on 55,900 and Highwood Resources advanced .12 to $2.12 on 53,950. Cornwall Petroleum leaped .60 to $7.95 and Waddy Lake advanced .35 to $3.60.

Tandem Resources advanced .07 to $1.09 on 95,500 shares, Warstar was unchanged at $1.70 and Semper Resources rose .05 to $2.65 on 41,800 shares. Stanholm Resources was unchanged at $1.35 and Backer Resources remained steady at .35.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices surged in heavy trading as a report of a leveling off in the consumer price spiral and Senate progress on a tax-cut bill outweighed news of a spreading prime rate rise.

The labor department said consumer prices remained steady in July as home mortgage rates fell. Mortgage rates since have turned upward along with other interest rates, and most major banks raised their prime lending rate a quarter-point to 11.25 per cent.

Senator Russell Long (Dem La.), meanwhile, said he beieves the Senate will pass a $39-billion tax-cut bill.

Oil issues were sharply higher despite news that Indonesia is cutting some oil prices in light of a world petroleum glut.

Mobil, which announced an apparent gas find off the Cameroon coast in Africa, rose 1 to $74⅜. Texaco, which reported a German North Sea oil find, climbed ¾ to $38⅜. Phillips Petroleum jumped 2¼ to $42¾.

London

LONDON (Reuter) — The London stock market was mixed at the close of a quiet session.

The Financial Times Index of 30 industrials closed at 498.9, up 1.0.

StarScene

Have you ever thought of NBC's new daytime host, David Letterman, as somewhat to the right of Terry-Thomas but to the left of Lauren Hutton? No, not politically. Just in that little league of big-time entertainers who refuse to let cosmetic dentists eradicate, or even shrink, the gap between their two front teeth.

You can't blame Johnny Carson for being so bowledover by saucer-eyed Kelly Garret's great singing on his recent show that he ignored small-talk about what she was wearing. Designed for her by Jim Cary, it's a whole show all by itself, all sunburst colors and American Indian-fringe that shimmers when Kelly moves. Only it isn't "Indian." It's about 20 pounds worth of bugle beads lovingly sewed to the sleek torso (a la Carole Lombard).

Perfect Gentlemen

Lauren Bacall, celebrated actress of Broadway stage and motion pictures, winner of a Tony Award and the Sarah Siddons Award, can be seen in her first motion picture - for - television, Perfect Gentlemen, to be broadcast Saturday at 10 p.m. on Channel 7.

The obvious question is why? "It was a good script," she says. It's got both humor and drama."

Joining Miss Bacall are two Academy Award winners, Ruth Gordon and Sandy Dennis, and an actress who won critical acclaim for her starring role in the motion picture "Julia," Lisa Pelikan.

"There is one basic difference between filming a motion picture for the theatres and one for television," Miss Bacall notes. "With television, the pace is much faster. It takes a bit of getting used to. Let's face it, you can't get the same results in four weeks that you might get in six months of shooting."

TV Mailbag

I'm so glad to see David McCallum is still working, having just seen him in The Watcher in the Woods. I was insane about him when he played Illya Kuryakin on The Man from U.N.C.L.E. How old is he now? And can you tell me if U.N.C.L.E. was on before or after he did The Great Escape and The Greatest Story Ever Told? Also, why doesn't NBC do a "Return of the Man from U.N.C.L.E."? — Lisa D. Vifnna, Portland, Maine.

At 47, McCallum probably still looks pretty good in a black turtleneck. He did The Great Escape in '63, the year before U.N.C.L.E. first went on the air, and played Judas in The Greatest Story Ever Told in 1965. I have no idea why NBC doesn't bring Solo and Kuryakin back for a TV movie, especially since The Wild Wild West, which was just spies on horseback, has done so well in its return engagement. Unfortunately, Leo G. Carroll passed away in 1972, so someone else would have to be recruited for the role of Mr. Waverly. Why not suggest it to the programming department at the network? The address is NBC Entertainment, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York.

This is going way back. Didn't Marlo Thomas, Danny's daughter, once star on The Joey Bishop Show? I know it seems more logical for her to have appeared with her father, but I'm sure it was with Joey.— Edie O'Neill, Red Bank, N.J.

I had to run to the books for this one. It turns out Marlo did appear on The Joey Bishop Show during its first season. She played Joey's sister Stella from 1961-62 before the format was changed. Abby Dalton came aboard to play Joey's wife for the next three seasons.

Is the actor who plays Trapper on the old reruns of M.A.S.H., the same actor who plays Michael on House Calls? — J. Doyle, Holliston, Mass.

Wayne Rogers was Trapper for the first three years of the series and now stars in House Calls as yet another doctor, while Pernell Roberts, who was Adam Cartwright on Bonanza, now plays an older Trapper on Trapper John, M.D.
